BURGLAR SUSPECT CAUGHT

BEVERLY, Sept. 8.—A man of about seventy years who gave the name of George Watson of New York was arrested on the Alexander Steinert estate, 200 yards from President Taft's Summer home early to-day, after a fierce struggle with Edward Coughlin, the Steinerts' night watchman. Coughlin fired a shot at Watson, who fired back with an ammonia squirt gun.

Some jewelry was found on him. The police are trying to connect him with the burglary at the Steinert house last Tuesday and the burglary at the T. F. Beals home last night. He was booked as a suspicious character and taken to Salem District court for arraignment.

Coughlin, the night watchman, was patrolling the Steinert grounds at 1 a. m. He saw a man skulking behind a tree. He gave chase and fired a revolver shot toward the fugitive, then caught up with and grappled with him. The fugitive discharged the contents of an ammonia squirt-gun into Coughlin's face, blinding the night watchman temporarily. Coughlin kept his grip on the man, however, until Edward Adams, another Steinert employe, came to his aid. The man was taken to Beverly police station.

He was neatly dressed in blue serge, with checked golf cap. He declared that he was a respectable business man of New York, but had no explanation to give for his presence on the Steinert grounds at that late hour.

On him were found a pearl stick-pin, several pairs of gold cuff-links, a costly gold watch and a wallet containing $25. The prisoner claimed these are his own.

Neither Mr. Steinert nor Mr. Beals could identify any of the jewelry as their property.

In the Salem Court to-day Watson was held in $1,000 on a charge of breaking and entering and in $4,000 on a charge of assault on Coughlin. His hearing will be September 15.

Urban Flemming of Holyoke, president of the union, George Conley of Lowell, vice-president, Samuel Rose of New Bedford, secretary and Thomas O'Donnell of Fall River, treasurer, were present at the opening exercises.

COLUMBUS STREET CAR DYNAMITED

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 8.—A successful attempt was made to dynamite a street car in Dennison, a suburb, to-day. The conductor was considerably injured and the car damaged. Two strike sympathizers are being held for investigation as for alleged complicity in recent dynamiting.

ENGLISHMAN FLIES TWICE TO LIGHT

HARVARD AVIATION FIELD, Squantum, Sept. 8.—An immense crowd poured into the Aviation Field this afternoon with the hope of seeing another thrilling flight around Boston Light for the Boston Globe $10,000 prize. It was expected that Glenn H. Curtiss, who flew over Lake Erie at the rate of seventy miles an hour, and Charles F. Willard, the Melrose birdman, would attempt the seaward flight to-day, and if either of them beat the time of Grahame-White he might make another try at it before dark.

Curtiss's biplane was in readiness for the flight, and Willard today had two pontoons attached to his machine, a Curtiss biplane, so that if he had a drop into the ocean he would be buoyed up.

WILLARD AWAITS FAVORABLE CONDITIONS.

"Will you try the Boston Light flight this afternoon?" Willard was asked.

"Can't say yet," replied the aviator.

Brookins and Johnstone, the two brilliant Wright aviators, were scheduled to make a number of flights this afternoon.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was on the field to-day and had his picture taken in a biplane. It was on the ground.

"Are you willing to go up in a machine if it can be arranged?" Chairman Glidden asked the Mayor.

"I should be glad to do so," replied the Mayor readily, "but I'd prefer to go up in an American machine."

Aviators who looked the Mayor over averred that his avoirdupois would probably eliminate him.

Mr. Glidden announced that he had a sensational contest in the air up his sleeve which he proposed to pull off soon, but he would give no idea as to what it be. It is believed that it will be a demonstration that will show the use of the aeroplane in time of war.

Curtiss would also make a flight for the $10,000 prize.

"Charlie" Taft out Early.

W. Starling Burgess, Mrs. Burgess and Charlie Taft were among the first to enter the field to-day. Augustus Post, the wealthy writer on aviation subjects, was the first one on the field with his Curtiss biplane. He made a short flight, going about 10 sety feet in the air and a distance of about 100 yards. He came near getting into a mixup as he came to the ground, but saved himself and his machine by cool judgment and by putting on full force of power and dashing over the bad spot.

William Hilliard, in a Burgess-Curtis biplane, made one of the prettiest amateur flights seen since the meet began. He flew once around the course, going on an even keel from thirty to forty feet in the air and alighting with great nicety.

A. V. Roe, in speaking of his accident to-day said:

"The trouble with my machine seems to be my inability to get sufficient power. It takes a great deal of power to drive the machine through a current of air. To-day when I was hit by a strong current of air there was not power enough for me to plunge through it, and as a result I was tumbled to the ground.

Machine Badly Wrecked.

"It was fortunate that I was not higher in the air or I might have been badly hurt. The machine is badly wrecked, but I have another triplane on the ground and I shall assemble it at once and give it a try-out. I am not in the least discouraged."

Horace G. Kearny, who has had hard luck with his Pfitzner monoplane, was on the ground to-day and made a few short jumps across the field. He only went a few feet into the air and a short distance over the field. He said that he was gradually getting his machine into shape to make a more pretentious effort.

It was figured out to-day how rapidly the competitors rose and fell yesterday in their altitude contests. Johnstone's rate was 80 feet a minute, Brookins' 100 feet, and Grahame-White 200 feet. A balloon

JUDGE BALDWIN IS NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 8.—Simeon E. Baldwin of New Haven, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was nominated for Governor and a full State ticket was placed in the field this noon at the biennial convention of the Democratic party.

Baldwin's nomination was made by acclamation, and it would have been made unanimous but for Professor Willard C. Fisher of Wesleyan University, who is Mayor of Middletown, who stubbornly refused to vote for Baldwin. Fisher made an exciting scene in the convention by standing up on the platform and saying that ex-Mayor Sullivan of Hartford had said to him:

"Make the nomination of Baldwin unanimous or I'll make it hot for you."

Fisher refused to withdraw his opposition to Baldwin and remained the only delegate opposing him.

The platform declares for the ratification of the income tax amendment to the Constitution; for the popular election of United States Senators; the creation of a public service commission in the State, and the creation of an effective public utilities commission, elected by the people to have supervision of all public service corporations.

GRADY'S SALARY IS RAISED $600 YEAR

Deputy Chief John Grady of the fire department received $600 increase in salary, and second Deputy Chief Peter F. McDonough was advanced $300 by Mayor Fitzgerald to-day. The increases were made upon the suggestion of Fire Commissioner Carroll, who stated that the officials should receive the additional compensation in order that their salary will be equal to those of fire department officials in other cities holding similar responsible positions. Grady now receives $3,000 per year, and McDonough, $2,800.

POSTOFFICE IS ROBBED.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. Sept. 8.—Robbers early to-day broke into the postoffice at Macedonia, near here, dynamited the safe, secured $200 in cash and escaped in an automobile.

JUDGE CHARGES AGAINST HOURIN

Alleging that Daniel C. Hourin, chief inspector of the street cleaning and sanitary division of the street department is harsh in his treatment of city employes and that in threatening to shoot one of them, the Joint Council of City Employes Union to-day made a formal request to Mayor Fitzgerald for his removal.

Hourin, who has been eleven years in the department, is characterized as a slave driver and an executive who keeps his subordinates in constant fear and dread.

Reasons Given for Demand.

The letter demanding his removal is signed by J. J. Galvin, president of the council, and Joseph P. Kelley, secretary. It says: "At a regular meeting of the above body it was unanimously voted to request you to remove from office Daniel C. Hourin of the street-cleaning department for the following reasons:

"On September 2 he committed an assault on a laborer with a loaded revolver, threatening to shoot Eugene Canney. This was in the presence of several inspectors in the sanitary department. The men working under him are in constant fear of him because of his domineering and insulting disposition. His language to the men is only characteristic of the man, as it is declared by practically every employe of the street-cleaning department for the past year and a half.

"Hourin refused to withdraw his opposition to Baldwin and remained the only delegate opposing him.

"The platform declares for the ratification of the income tax amendment to the Constitution; for the popular election of United States Senators; the creation of a public service commission in the State, and the creation of an effective public utilities commission, elected by the people to have supervision of all public service corporations.

GAMAR FAVORITE IN CHARTER OAK

CHARTER OAK PARK, Hartford, Sept. 8.—A high-class field of trotters started in the $10,000 Charter Oak stake at the Grand Circuit meeting this afternoon. Among the starters were the Indiana stallion, Gamar, General H. from Calgary, Northwest Territory, Tessel, Demarest, Soprano and Arte Leyburn. All had their friends, but the general opinion was that the race would result in a duel between the first two named stallions.

Melva J., and Justo looked best in the 2:11 trot, Creighton in the 2:20 trot, and Earl Jr., in the 2:05 pace, although Jennie W., Ella Ambulator and Walter W., were figured to give the latter's bot argument.

DENTIST KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

AYER, Sept. 8.—Dr. Claude Grenache, a Pepperell dentist, was killed in an automobile accident here. He was riding in a machine operated by Roger Taft of Pepperell and was thrown under the wheels of a freight train when the machine struck a telegraph pole. Dr. Grenache and two friends had been out for a spin with Taft and were returning home by way of Ayer. As they approached the West Main street crossing of the Fitchburg Division, Boston & Maine Railroad, a freight was approaching, but Taft failed to see it until they were almost upon the crossing. Taft and the other two occupants of the machine escaped with minor injuries.

TOOK LANDLORD FOR A BURGLAR

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 8.—Sixteen-year-old Mary Rogers mistook her landlord for a burglar early to-day and after locking her door jumped from a third floor window at No. 31 Webster street, this place, to the ground sixty feet below. She was internally injured. At the hospital it is thought she will die. She landed on a wooden staircase.

The landlord was making his collections of rent, when he encountered Miss Rogers in the hall. Mary, hearing his steps and thinking he was a burglar, barred her door. Then she screamed for help. She was alone in the house at the time.

LOOM FIXERS GIVE UP STRIKE

FALL RIVER, Sept. 8.—The strike declared by the weavers of the Arkwright Mills two weeks ago has been called off and hereafter the weavers will return to their looms. The strike was inaugurated because the weavers claimed that they were insufficiently paid for the cloth which they turned off their looms.

Since the concern changed from fine goods to coarse goods there has been more or less dissatisfaction among the help, although some of the weavers who quit early in the week joined the Weavers' Progressive Union, James Whitehead, secretary of the union, refused to sanction the strike and therefore withheld the union's

WANTS MORE NIGHTS FOR REGISTRATION

At the suggestion of President Maynard of the Democratic City Committee, Mayor Fitzgerald will confer with the election commissioners relative to holding outside registration for the enrollment of voters in the twenty-five wards for five evenings in advance of the State primaries in addition to the two evenings of the registration which are held before the State election. President Maynard believes that it will greatly increase the party enrollment and he further believes that the additional evenings should be provided if the expense is not too great.

BEQUESTS IN TIRRELL WILL

The will of Congressman Charles Q. Tirrell, who died on July 31, was filed for probate in East Cambridge at noon to-day, and showed an estate valued at $100,000, of which $3,000 was real estate. A bequest of $1,000 is left to Dartmouth College, the income of which shall be devoted to what will be known as the Tirrell Athletic Scholarship. POLICE HUNTING COFFEY SLAYER

The police sent out a general alarm to-day for an Italian whom they want in connection with the death of Timothy Coffey of No. 7 Dexter avenue, Watertown, who was stabbed last night on Cambridge street. The missing man is described as thirty years old, five feet seven inches tall, weighing 200 pounds, smooth faced with a prominent chin. He wears a black coat, blue overalls and a black soft hat.

The police say they have found a witness of the stabbing. Their theory is that Coffey insulted the unknown foreigner, who responded with a knife.

Coffey was picked up unconscious with a wound in his chest. Later he told a surgeon at the Massachusetts General Hospital that he had been struck by a man in a crowd. He died at 12:30 a. m. to-day.

GOV. QUINBY AT NAVY YARD

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 8.—Governor Quinby of New Hampshire and staff paid an official visit to the Navy Yard to-day, coming from Fort Constitution at Newcastle. He was received by Captain Frank A. Wilner, commander of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and Major Henry Leonard of the Marine Corps. They visited the United States cruiser Tennessee and received a 13-gun salute.

FREED OF KILLING.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—Albert Julien is not the man who murdered Brakeman James M. Wine on the Burlington Overland express Tuesday night and robbed the five passengers of the rear Pullman car, Thomas Griffin, the train electrician, cleared him of suspicion to-day. Julien was released.

FATHER VAUGHAN MAKES SHARP ATTACK ON RACE SUICIDE

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—Father Vaughan, the Rev. Bernard Vaughan, S. J., of London, to-day in a sensational reply to the attack on his complaint on Protestantism delivered a vigorous attack on race suicide, declaring that Protestantism would die out if the prevalence of that factor a civilization were not checked.

"Doubling up their fists and shaking them in the face of God," he said, "the married couples say, 'You order increase and we defy you.'

"I call racial suicide constructive treason against God. To flee the married life and deliberately to shirk its most sacred consequences is in my judgment to live in a state of legalized prostitution."

Father Vaughan's statement follows:

"I have been accused of publicly stating that Protestants are on the wane and Catholics are on the increase. What I did say amounts to this, which I do not hesitate to repeat: Namely, that if racial suicide is not sooner or later checked among non-Catholics, their numbers must necessarily decrease till at length the death rate becoming greater than the birth rate, there will be an appreciable shrinkage in the non-Catholic population.

"If in a single generation the birth rate in the motherland dropped from 38 and 37 down to 25 and 24 per thousand. It seems to me I was not only justified in making my statement, but as a son of my country, and as a Christian man, I was bound not only to make it, but to ring out as loudly as I could my warning about the disastrous consequence which cannot but result from the gross practice."

"Treason Against God."

"I cannot conceive of more short-sighted folly or of a worse policy than that of a man and woman calling themselves husband and wife, doubling up their fists and shaking them in the face of the divine majesty of God Almighty. I call racial suicide constructive treason against God.

"I thank God, and every righteous minded, right thinking human being ought also to thank God, that there is, anyhow, one institution on earth, and seemingly one only, unfortunately, which is so clear, definite and resolute about the sacred and indissoluble character of the marriage vows and about its responsibilities and duties with regard to children that it will not for a moment tolerate even thought of divorce, nor the checking of God's will, touching the fruits of the sublime, sacred and sacramental wedded state."

One of the most attractive features of to-day's program was the music given at St. Patrick's by the chancel choir and the St. Patrick's orphans. The program had for its main events the pontifical mass for religious communities in the cathedral at 9 a. m., general sectional meetings in French and English from 10 to 12 and 2:30 and 4:30, with a priests' special meeting, and a special meeting for the Catholic women at 10 a. m.

Questions Discussed.

To-day the Rev. J. J. Metcalf of Worcester, Mass., speaking on adoration of the Blessed Sacrament, advocated frequent communion, public masses and general communion among societies and schools. The Rev. William Finn, C. S. P., of Chicago, advocated the development of men's and boys' choirs, and urged the establishment of a national school of musical pedagogy. The Rev. Mgr. Lynch of Syracuse discussed practical means of encouraging frequent communion.

The day was marred by a protest by Frenchmen against precedence given to Irish colors over those of France in the public decorations.

BRIDE FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IS POISON VICTIM

Found unconscious on the doorsteps of her home at No. 405 Broadway, South Boston, under circumstances which warranted a police investigation, Mrs. Jane Gately, wife of George Gately, a well-known insurance man of this city, is now at the Carney Hospital in a serious condition, due to laudanum poisoning.

No one knows the circumstances by which the young woman took the poison. It is not known whether she drank the laudanum accidentally or with suicidal intent, or whether it was administered to her by other persons with criminal design.

Recovery Doubtful.

Mrs. Gately was found by Dr. Francis Mastidotte, who lives in apartments adjoining Mrs. Gately's home. Dr. Mastidotte was awakened by groaning. After searching about the hallways of the house, he opened the front door and found Mrs. Gately curled up on the doorsteps. The doctor tried to arouse her, but she lapsed into unconsciousness and her efforts were not adequate to revive her.

An ambulance was summoned and Mrs. Gately was removed to the Carney Hospital, where her case was immediately placed on the dangerous list. The doctors say her recovery is doubtful.

Two Were With Her.

Mrs. Gately was accompanied to her home by a lady and a woman both of whom were dressed in dark clothes, but a short time before she was found unconscious in the doorway. It is not believed that Mrs. Gately, who is twenty-one years old and a bride of a few months, took the poison by design, and the police are looking for the man and woman who left her in the doorway.

INDICT SIBLEY FOR BRIBERY

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 8.—Joseph Sibley, who retired from the race for Congress upon the exposure of his whole sale corruption of voters with Standard Oil money, was last night indicted along with the confederates by the Warren County Grand Jury. The grand jury returned true bills against Sibley and his associates for conspiracy to bribe the voters of the Twenty-eighth Congressional District.

Sibley's canvass of his Congressional district in the recent campaign was estimated to have cost $100,000, instead of the $42,000 which he publicly admitted spending. At this rate it was figured that Sibley paid something like $10 a vote for the mere chance to run for a seat in Congress.

ANNIE MORECROFT POSTPONES SWIM

The strong easterly wind, which had created a choppy sea, caused Annie Morecroft of Revere, who had planned to attempt the swim from Warren Bridge, Charlestown, to Boston Light at noon today, to postpone her trial. Miss Morecroft came to the bridge at noon, ready to make the swim. Her father, William Morecroft, and her trainer, John McLean, advised strongly against the attempt, however, and Miss Morecroft decided to wait till the first fair day.

OSTRICH DINES ON NAILS AND WIRE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A menu of electric wire and white and blue bunting, several nails which happened to be loose in a fence and numerous stones from a rock heap just outside the Reunings race track are among the memories of Washington which Cyclone, the Florida ostrich, will take back home with him. Cyclone broke loose from his moorings and devastated several booths. He was thought to have eaten his way through the fence when discovered enjoying a dainty dessert of thicker, sharp-edged stones at the rock pile.

SWANS OF EVERETT ARE REMARRIED

The records of City Clerk Cannal of Everett have disclosed the fact that the marital troubles of ex-Alderman and Mrs. Rowland E. Swan, who were divorced two years ago, have been settled by a second marriage, performed by the Rev. George Hazelton Spencer, of the First Methodist Church, several days ago. The estrangement of the Swans caused a stir in Everett social circles, and when it was learned that they had become reconciled and were remarried it caused fully as great a sensation. It is understood that the reconciliation was brought about by close personal friends of the couple, who have been attempting to settle the differences for the sake of the four beautiful children who were the chief sufferers through the separation of their parents.

NEW CUSTOMS RULE CAUSES GREAT DELAY

More than 2,000 passengers arriving on the Saxonia and Canopic today had to stand in line for hours, waiting for their baggage to be examined.

This hardship was caused by the first application today of the stricter customs inspection, also by the fact that the customs staff is short-handed.

Between the minute examination made of their baggage, the unexpected manner in which duty was levied down to the last cent, and the long and wearisome waiting for their turn, the passengers were surprised and indignant.

Many passengers, living at distant points, missed train connections. Some, who were assessed unexpected duties, were obliged to wire for more funds or have their baggage sent to the inspectors' stores. Formerly the customs regulations allowed a person to bring in free $100 worth of foreign-bought goods. Now these must be for personal use, gifts for friends are dutiable. Goods costing as low as $25 were appraised today.

25,000 Pieces Examined.

As the passengers had about 25,000 pieces of baggage, the minute examination of these took hours.

The Cunard liner Saxonia from Liverpool, and the White Star liner Canopic brought a total of 2,000 passengers.

The customs force to handle these is inadequate. To make matters worse, some of the inspectors had to be detailed to meet the incoming boats from the Mediterranean ports, which brought 600 passengers.

Colonel Billings of the immigration station had his troubles. While he was trying to distribute his men among the 11 received word from the Seamen's Society of Naples to be on the lookout for bogus seamen who were said to have shipped on the Canopic without emigration inspection in Italy, in order to desert when this country was reached.

220 Penniless Immigrants.

Then 220 penniless Russian Jews were found on the Saxonia. They are refugees from districts were the heavy hand of the Czar is felt and will probably be deported. Altogether, it was the busiest day the custom and immigration officials in this city have ever seen.

The passengers on the Canopic included Duke Del Monte, who is to marry Miss Julie Buchanan, daughter of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, and Charles Ring, the well known Spanish matador, on his way to Cuba.

SENATOR ELKINS SAYS: 'NO MARRIAGE'

ELKINS, W. Va., Sept. 8.—Emphatic denial is made by Senator Stephen B. Elkins of the rumors that he is preparing to go to Paris or that his daughter, Katherine Elkins, will marry the Duke of the Abruzzi in February, or at any other time, or that his family is to be presented to the Italian court. With some inquiries here, he declared that he had denied rumors until he was worn out, and that he would like to have it noted as a fact that there was no contemplated union between his daughter and the Duke.

IRENE SHERMAN SOCIETY BRIDE AT NEWPORT TO-DAY

MISS SHERMAN NOW A BRIDE

Society's interest centred to-day in the marriage, at Newport, of Miss Irene Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, to Lawrence L. Gillespie, which was celebrated at the villa of her parents, The Louis XVI. drawing room, where the ceremony is performed by the Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church, resembled a chapel. At one end of it a temporary altar, with a background of palms and feathery asparagus, interspersed with white roses and orchids, was arranged, and leading to it was an aisle formed of white satin posts topped with bunches of white flowers and connected with white satin ribbon, through which the bridal party passes. The temporary room which has been added to the villa to provide extra space for the many guests is finished in white and gray, similar to the drawing room, and is decorated to correspond.

Miss Sherman, who is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. John Carter Brown, made a pretty bride in her gown of white satin and lace. The satin, however, is only the foundation of the dress, as it is almost completely covered with beautiful old point lace her mother wore at her own marriage.

Her sister, Mildred Sherman, was her maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are Miss Edith Slater Miller, Miss Dion Rives, Miss Margaret Steward, Miss May Harriman and the Misses Ruth and Dorothy King.

DR. CRIPPEN IS HIT HARD BY WITNESSES

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Crown to-day began setting the foundation of the case against Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, accused of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore. With the resumption of his hearing in Bow Street Police Court, Prosecutor Travers Humphreys set out to establish the corpus delicti. Behind him was an array of witnesses, ready to testify that the mutilated remains found buried in quicklime in the cellar of No. 39 Hilldrop crescent, North London, on July 18, were those of Belle Crippen.

The scenes that marked the previous hearing were repeated to-day. A crowd of 10,000 surrounded the court building, hundreds having stayed by their posts for hours for the chance of seeing the defendant. The police had no difficult a time as on Tuesday to handle the crowd. So great was the crush at one time that several women fainted.

The first witness called was Mrs. Smyth Cox, a professional friend of Belle Elmore, associated with her in the London Music Hall Artists' Guild, of which the slain woman was treasurer.

"I last saw Belle Elmore on January 20," said the witness. "She appeared in good health, and her manner was normal. Later I saw Ethel LeNeve at a ball attended by many theatrical people. She wore Mrs. Crippen's brooch and the fact attracted much attention. To those who questioned him that night Crippen said his wife had gone to California.

Dr. Crippen's Death Tale.

"I saw Crippen after the death of Belle Elmore had been announced in the London Daily Mail. He said that he intended to bring his wife's ashes back to England and have a ceremony performed over them here.

"He gave me the address of his son Hawley Crippen, in Los Angeles, Cal., where he is employed by a telephone company. Crippen said that a letter of sympathy might be sent there.

"The last time I saw Dr. Crippen before his arrest was on May 18. At that time he told me that his wife had been cremated, and he had received the ashes. He led me to believe that she had died in Los Angeles, but he appeared reticent. It was only after I had asked him three times and pressed the point that he gave me the address where she had died, according to his story.

Two strong points against the prisoner were made by the next witness, Mrs. Harrison, also a theatrical friend. She testified that she knew Mrs. Crippen had undergone an operation because she had seen the scar. The prosecution had depended, according to observers here to-day, largely on this scar as establishing the identity of the body. The sale of five grains of hyoscin, the deadly heart poison, trace of which was found by the chemical analysis, was sworn to by one Kirby, clerk for a wholesale drug firm.

Sold the Doctor Poison.

"Dr. Crippen bought the drugs on January 19," he said. "He betrayed no nervousness. I sold it to him because I knew him, and he had bought drugs from us before."

The drug clerk said Crippen signed the poison register in a firm hand, "Munyon's per H. H. Crippen, for purpose of homeopathic prescriptions."

Crippen was twice London representative of the American homeopathic drug house of Munyon.

"In the last year," continued the witness, "Crippen bought numerous drugs, including cocaine, morphine and mercury."

This testimony revived interest, as court officers the report that Crippen was addicted to the use of drugs.

Inspector Dew on Stand.

Inspector Dew, taking up the story repeated his previous story of the search of the house, the arrests and the stories told by the prisoners. His announcement of the discovery of the revolver caused a sensation in the court room.

The fact that the head of the victim has not been found adds to the importance of Dew's testimony.

Although at the time of the alleged statement is withheld, the report was rejected by the police magistrate, Ellen Elmore, companion of the accused man, will be the star witness for the prosecution in the actual trial.

WINS $1,800 SUIT AGAINST EVERETT

The full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court holds that Delavon C. Delano is entitled to $1,800, which a jury in the Superior Court awarded him for damages to his property in Everett, caused by the Board of Health of that city for a sanitary house sewer. Delano was the holder of a mortgage on the premises, which, without his consent, were leased by the mortgagor to the city of Everett.

AIR CURRENT HURLS ROE'S TRIPLANE TO GROUND WITH A CRASH

Aviator Escapes Serious Injury But Machine Is Badly Damaged.

may go up or down as rapidly as 1000 feet a minute.

Governor Draper and Major Fitzgerald, it was announced by the contest committee, would arrive on the field this afternoon, the Governor being accompanied by his staff.

The following rule for amateur aviators who desire to compete in the contest was made by the contest committee today:

"No amateur aviator shall be allowed to compete in the contest until he has been qualified by flying around the course of the field once in the presence of the contest committee."

W. Starling Burgess announced at Atlantic to-day that he filed this field so well he will keep this machine and use it time after the present meet, one in which he will fly himself, and the other for William Hilliard. Mr. Burgess stated that he would not attempt any flying at the present meet.

White Likely to Win $25,000.

The American aviators have practically given up hope of beating Grahame-White, and to-day there is every reason to believe that upwards of $25,000 of the $40,000 in cash prizes offered by the Harvard Aeronautical society will go to the Englishman at the close of the meet next Tuesday.

Grahame-White has shown the Americans his rudder every day in the speed trials, negotiating the three-and-a-quarter mile course in thirty minutes flat. Only the best which Curtiss, the fastest American flier, could make was 34 minutes, conceded that the Bleriot machine is flower than the Curtiss biplane. Grahame-White made the thirty-three mile run for the $10,000 prize in 4m. 15s.

It is doubtful if any of the Americans can better this mark. Grahame-White now leads in the speed contest, including the Boston Light flight, altitude, the bomb dropping and is tied in the duration and distance contests. He is due to win $5,000 for speed, $10,000 on the Boston Light contest, $5,000 in bomb-dropping, $500 in the getaway, $4,000 in the altitude, and should win first prize in either the duration or distance contests, as there is little doubt his fastest machine on the field he will win both duration and distance flights in the event that he wins the aluminin cup contest.

As it now stands, Glenn H. Curtiss, one side of the cash bonus paid him for attending the meet, stands to get $2,000 in the speed contest, and either $500 or $250 in the accuracy contest.

Charles F. Willard has a good chance for $1,000 in the speed contest, and aside from one of the small prizes in the getaway and the accuracy contests, his chances for prize money do not look very good.

The Wright machines, perhaps the most consistent in their daily flights are not fast enough or light enough to figure strongly in the events of the meet.

Chance for Wright Machines.

The Wright machines can go the course and sail around and around until the spectator forgets they are in the days progress. If Johnstone can keep in the air he may bring down the prize for duration although in so doing he may not win the Gatun-Grahame-White if he is going to get the first prize of $2,000 for distance. It is safe to figure that either Mr. or Mrs. Johnstone will pick up $2,000 or $4,000 in the duration and distance contests, and also $1,000 and the $500 in the slowest lap contest. Up to the present the distinguished of agreeing in the distance contest, $1500 in the getaway and the $750 in the accuracy contest.

In the above outline of probable order of finish, however, the fact must not be overlooked that the Wrights and the long-time event must be considered. Brooklyn and Johnstone have covered forty miles at the battleship coming to them and it is thought that they will make the course to-day.

But whatever the Americans may do to do it is safe to assume that Grahame-White will go down in history as the first man to fly over the course in a machine of the type. Yesterday he took a try at the accuracy contest and didn't get within 100 feet of the centre of the course. On the second trial he stopped outside of the circle after making the course in perfect circle. Not a very good record in view of the fact that Curtiss and Ely came within sixty feet and ten inches of the centre post, and Curtiss came within sixty feet. Answer. Not as long as it takes a cylinder full of gasoline to explode.

White's Busy Day.

He got into his old clothes and had the record watching him, however, as he jumped from one event to another. For he made the record run in altitude, he dashed down to Boston Light and took brine, he made a trial of three times around the course for speed, and scored well in the duration and distance trials.

Quite a bit of work for a breezy afternoon.

Curtiss was again about thirty seconds behind Grahame-White in the speed run, but made a duration feat of 6m. 22 2-5s. He one mark which led for the day was in the accuracy trials, in which he came a pretty landing within one hundred feet circle and stopped within sixty-three feet ten inches of the center.

C. F. Roe tried out his triplane with a view to effect for it turned it off the ground for a longer flight than 300 feet. Willard tried a speed run but his engine did not work out well enough and did not complete the course.

The crowd of almost 12,000 people yesterday saw a good day's sport, although the real features were supplied by the Britisher. The flying began in earnest about 7:30 o'clock, when Grahame-White made his first trial in the accuracy contest. Then about 3 o'clock Brooklin ran his machine across the field toward a line of automobiles near the headquarters of the contest committee.

Nearly Hits Pres. Lowell.

The machine did not rise, and almost landed in the arms of President Lowell of Harvard, who was seated in one of the big touring cars. But it gave the scare the danger and managed to shut off his engine.

Brooklin then went up and made a trip of one and three quarter miles in 2m 15 2-5s. He went on and did the course in seven seconds less. He was trying to make the slowest time in five laps, and up the third time around shied his motor, rising up 4m. 45 2-5s in circling the point. The time for the last gored 13m.

Then Johnstone went up for distance and duration and for 1h. 4m. 27 2-5s. he cheered around and around an average height of 150 feet. The crowd thought he was in action after he had been up for a half hour, but he kept plugging along at the same height and finally made the duration and also in the distance events for the meet.

White's Record Flight.

While Johnstone was plowing his way to glory, Grahame-White was breathing the plaudits of the big crowd in his rush down the harbor to Boston Light, returning to the field and circling the course again, a distance of thirty-three miles. He did the course in 33m. 3 1-5s. It was the finest exhibition of flying the most skilful aviators, although one of the Englishman's small Bleriot was so great that he was in sight of the crowd all the time, three minutes of the time in which he was making the run. Curtiss was unable to get his machine to the field, but not so. For on his return Grahame-White found that Johnstone had and Johnstone had started out to gather in a few more altitude contest, but Grahame-White put a little more gasoline into his motor and went after them and sent his little wasp-like machine winging upwards in long spirals and went to a height of 2,440 feet. Johnstone did 2,870 and Brooklin 2,610.

"A JOLLY TRIP," SAYS WHITE OF RACE TO LIGHT

Following is Grahame-White's story of his flight around Boston Light, the first made for the $10,000 cash prize:

"It was a jolly trip and I enjoyed every moment of it.

"The strong glare of the sun that almost blinded me at times was not uncomfortable feature. I would have cut the time considerably if I had not gone for this as I could not see to keep the course that I had mapped out.

"It was my intention to fly straight for Boston Light from the start, and I think I would have taken me over to the South of Moon Island head, directly across Rainsford and Gallop's Island to the light.

"After I passed Squantum I decided that I would allow for the wind and that was blowing and, when I discovered my mistake, I had drifted over toward Spectacle Island, about two miles out of my course.

"The wind was then across me and hampered me very little. I made a turn with my machine around and flew in a straight line, passing George's Island on the north side instead of on the south, as I had intended.

"I kept pretty well up all the way and when I got to the light I was at an altitude of nearly 1,500 feet. It was with considerable trouble that I picked up Boston Light, for I went out to it in a position on the other day, and close up it looked like a huge white tower, but from the high altitude I could hardly make it out.

Blinded by Sun's Glare.

"After I turned around the light and started back for home I was on a westward course. There was a strong wind blowing against me, and time and again I found that I was going to the left of the course. I tended to follow.

"The glare of the sun was in my eyes from the moment that I turned around the light and hampered me greatly. It almost blinded me at times and, in seeking to avoid it, I got well out of the course. I my mentally mapped out.

"The second trip out to the light came much easier for I had a good knowledge of the wind that was blowing and I allowed for it.

"I purposely made a wide detour of the course, for I was afraid that if I took the grand stand, for the course I had mapped out I would run almost in a straight line to the light.

"I kept a wide elevation most of the way, and when I neared the light I again had the same experience in picking it up.

"Trip a Jolly One."

"Although the glare of the sun was just as strong coming home as at any time, I kept a pretty straight course, as every moment in the air I was getting more of the experience that I had gone through in the first trip.

"There wasn't anything extraordinary about the trip. Flying over water is a particle different than the land, except there is usually a stiffer wind.

"I have made a number of more difficult trips. In fact, the trip was a jolly one.

"I didn't let my engine out to its capacity at any time, for I didn't feel that I needed to. I am thoroughly satisfied with the trip.

"At no time did I really get the benefit of the wind, for it kept changing so that I was not required to keep my machine headed at something better than seventy miles an hour, while, if the wind had been in my favor, I am sure the monoplane would have attained a much greater speed.

"Should my time be improved on, I will continue, for I am particularly anxious to win the blue ribbon event of the meet ing."

WHITE'S RIVALS SAY HE'S HARD MAN TO BEAT

Grahame-White's rivals at the aviation meet are unanimous in praising him for his thrilling race to Boston Light yesterday. They declare he deserves credit for a splendid performance.

This is what they say:

Glenn H. Curtiss—"It gave me much pleasure to congratulate Grahame-White on his successful race to Boston Light. He is a splendid operator and will be a hard man to beat. He is a worthy foeman for the best of our flyers in this country.

"I expect to make a strong bid for the Boston Light prize and I believe that I am gradually getting a little more speed out of my machine. I feel it, for Grahame-White's Bleriot is very fast.

"Encountering the 50-horse power Bleriot at this meeting was something we Americans hardly expected, and to tell the truth I, for one, was caught a bit napping when I ran against the fast French model. It is a trifle humiliating when my speed was considered my specialty in the week.

"I have no idea how successful or unsuccessful I will be in the record meeting, but when it comes time for the International I will be prepared. I hope not to be caught napping the second time."

Nice Trip, Says Johnstone.

Ralph Johnstone—

"Grahame-White's flight to Boston Light was a nice one.

"My trip for altitude, duration and distance was all that I could desire, but there was nothing extraordinary about it. I was merely trying to skip some drill points. When I go for records later in the week I expect to do much better.

A. V. Roe—

"It was particularly pleasant at the success of my fellow countryman, Grahame-White, for but I was not greatly surprised for he is the leading aviator of England. He will take home $10,000 if he can. Why, at Crystal Palace the field was such that any one that is known has never a chance to try and fly, yet Grahame-White fought nothing of the dangers. The Boston Light run was nothing compared to Crystal Palace and other flights of Mr. White.

"Again, he flew in a fairly stiff, a very strong wind and the entire flight was over the water. He is a fine aviator and he had absolutely no hope if the engine failed him.

White's Daring.

"Another example of his lack of fear was shown when he started after Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, for the $50,000 London-Manchester prize. Grahame-White started at night. You can imagine flying in the dark as it is bad enough when you have daylight and an open field under you.

"What he gets he earns. I do know that he will take great risks, but then it is bad not do much more than that."

Augustus Post—"Grahame-White's trip to Boston Light was a splendid one and I don't know anything that has given me so much pleasure as an opportunity to congratulate him on its successful consumption.

"I had hoped to fly in the amateur events yesterday morning, but it was delayed in coming down to the field. My machine is ready and I hope to start soon. The greater part of flying is done on the ground, and that is where I have been since I arrived, putting my machine together, oiling, testing and tuning up."

TOO MUCH PERIL IN RACE TO LIGHT FOR WILBUR WRIGHT

Wilbur Wright considers the speed contest to Boston Light too dangerous for the machines he and his brother have entered in the meet and has decided to enter none in the race. In an interview he discusses some of the perils of aviation. He says:

"My brother and I have decided that we shall not enter our machines at the meet in the contest for speed about Boston Light for the $10,000 prize.

"Primarily, because we think that the course is too dangerous for our machines. Secondly, we do not go in for that kind of business. We build our machines for durability, carrying capacity and low cost of fuel consumption.

"A basic principle of our business methods is never to risk one of our aviators to do any work when we consider too dangerous to do ourselves.

"In building our aeroplanes, we strive to build machines which can take care of any kind of weather and be assured of returning safely to earth. Others went to take hazardous flights and run the risk of serious accidents, that is their business.

Danger Always Present.

"In my flight over the Hudson River, I had my machine equipped with pontoons so that if I landed in the water damage was lessened. But don't forget that there is always danger in aeroplaning.

"A machine may break at the most unexpected moments. See the way our machines have been acting with us in the first few days of the meet. A slight loosening of a bolt put one out of commission for days.

"Supposing that had happened in flight. There is no telling what would have happened. The machine is apt to strike the water at such an angle as to drive it underneath and drag the aviator with it and entangle him in the wires.

"Then there is the financial loss to the line than the kind of work necessary in a trip to Boston Light.

"There are many persons who have made spectacular flights abroad who have no business in an aeroplane. It isn't a machine that one can jump right into, crank the propeller and soar away.

"Aviation takes time, study and experience, none so than many less difficult professions. And it is only another form of suicide for the man who makes one of two successful flights to believe that his first successes will always attend him."

Blanchard, for example take Moisant's flight from Paris to London. His first flight was eminently successful and spectacular. To sail over the English Channel is no ordinary performance.

"But what has been his experience since? Almost every time he lands he wrecks his machine. It has taken him three weeks to get going.

"Understand, I am not criticising Mr. Moisant or his work. Simply his trip illustrates the danger of allowing first flights to encourage one to too much confidence.

"The danger line, or the safety zone, whichever you prefer to call it, is still uncertain in aviation. We hope that, in the days to come, the development of our machine itself. Four or five hours in the salt water is enough to spoil a machine and we have too few of them and too many serious undertakings in view to retard our work with unnecessary dangers.

"Our machines while here will undoubtedly be entered in the events where speed is essential. We shall go in for the altitude contest, as we are fitted for that kind of work.

"The duration contests are more in our machines will tend to diminish the danger to a minimum."

NEW JERSEY DARES GREEN MAKES VAIN ATTEMPT TO FLY

NEWMARKET, N. J., Sept. 8.—Convinced by the achievements of others that flying was easy, Hans Christiansen, a farm hand employed by Charles Fleming on the River Road, near this place, rigged himself up with wings to-day and jumped off the roof of the barn. He had a fall of twenty feet, and was badly shaken up, but will get over it.

Christiansen tied bags to his arms and fastened a parasol over his head and thought he could surely fly then. Nobody was about when he made the leap, and he lay unconscious for some time before his employer can across him in the grass by the roadside. He was examined by a surgeon, and it was found that no bones were broken.

MYSTERY AIRSHIP GIVES LOWELLITES A NEW SENSATION

LOWELL, Sept. 7.—Residents of the Highlands are to-day comparing notes on the mysterious airship which has been making night trips over New England of late. They say they saw it again last night. It appeared high up between 9 and 10 o'clock, moving swiftly in the direction of Worcester. A Billerica man also saw the night traveler. He describes it as a light in a skeleton structure moving rapidly westward.

GAVE MORSE TWO DAYS IN LONE CELL

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 8.—In response to a telegram from the Attorney-General's office at Washington, Warden W. H. Moyer of the United States prison here issued an official statement in regard to the punishment inflicted on Charles W. Morse, the former New York banker and steamship magnate, whose fortune at one time was estimated to be high in the millions.

The warden states that Morse was confined for two days last May in a solitary cell. This punishment followed Morse's refusal to acquaint the prison officials with the source from which he had received money, $46 in all, in violation of the rules. Warden Moyer says he learned that the money was given to Morse by his wife and by W. P. Reid, Morse's former business partner.

The warden denies that Morse was confined in a dungeon, or that he was ever put on bread and water. He says that Morse's confinement in the solitary cell in no way injured his health, but that on the contrary Morse is at present in much better health than when he was admitted to the prison.

The bulk of the money went to a discharged prisoner, a crippled Polish youth. The warden did not think, however, that Morse knew that the money was to be thus used, as he gave it to a guard to distribute as she thought best.

Morse is not now engaged in the library work, but is preparing an index showing the physical condition of the prisoners when they enter and when they leave. This work seems congenial to him, and he is giving excellent satisfaction.

Miss Sears Will Seek Cohasset Blue Ribbon

Miss Eleonora Sears Driving Mary Garden.

Eleonora Sears and "Mary Garden" make a combination hard to beat, and if this pair appear at the Cohasset Horse Show to-morrow and Saturday the spectators will have a rare treat. "Mary Garden" will surely be there—Miss Sears possibly.

"Mary Garden" is a fine mare owned by Mr. M. Maurice Dimond of the Hotel Purtan, and with Miss Sears holding the reins won the blue ribbon at the Newport horse show last Monday, winning out over the famous Vanderbilt and Watson entries.

At Magnolia the result was the same, and Miss Sears and "Mary" came off with a blue ribbon and a cup.

"Mary" is a dark bay, seven years old, and has wonderful conformation.

The Cohasset show will be at Henry M. Whitney's race track at Cohasset for the benefit of the Bonnie Bairns, a Summer hospital for the sick babies of Boston.

HUMAN CHAIN SAVES LIFE OF A LITTLE GIRL

The life of eight-year-old Margaret Campana of No. 50 Everett street, Charlestown, was saved by three young men, who formed a human chain to pull the little girl from the bottom of a catch basin at the corner of Medford and Everett streets.

George Lawrence of No. 10 cottage street, Arlington, was lowered into the sewer by Frank O'Brien of No. 32 Everett street and Martin Gyden of No. 44 Cook street, Charlestown, and he grabbed the young girl floundering around in the water at the bottom of the catch basin by the head. With the assistance of Gyden and O'Brien, he pulled the little miss up onto the sidewalk.

Patrolmen Anthony Fitzpatrick and the three men started to give the little girl the first aid to the injured and she was later removed to the Relief Hospital.

In company with several other girls and boys the Campana girl was playing on Everett street. One of the lads lost a ball in the catch basin, and in order to get it they lifted the cover off. The little girl was looking into the basin when she lost her balance and fell in head first. When the young men brought the girl onto the sidewalk they were greeted with cheers by the large crowd assembled.

CZAR ESCAPES PLOT TO KILL

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—German officialdom has been given a shock by the latest attempt on the life of Czar Nicholas, as one of the cleverest yet made. The authorities to-day connect the plot with the plans of the anarchists now assembled in secret international convention at Zurich, Switzerland.

Detectives familiar with the work of the extreme radicals are to-day hunting two men disguised as officers of the Eighty-Eighth Regiment, who passed all the guards thrown around the castle where the Czar and the Tsarina are visiting at Fredeberg, failing to reach the Emperor only because they lacked the passport to enter the palace gates.

WANTS NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY SYSTEM HERE

I hope that next year we shall be able to nominate our candidates in the same way that New Hampshire did. It is the only true expression of popular opinion and is fundamental Democratic doctrine as we have just now seen. It is idle for us to be fighting for direct nomination and then smother the little opportunity there is for the people to express their choice under our present system.—James H. Vahey, candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor of Massachusetts.

NEW MESSAGES FROM PROF. JAMES IN WORLD OF SPIRITS PROMISED

The reported spirit message from the late Professor William James to the effect that he is at peace and that another message may be expected from him when he is more at home in his new environment has led to the arrangement for additional seances in Boston, a psychic strong hold. Some of the seances, it is reported, are being held in secret.

One of the most remarkable developments of the attempt to talk with Professor James is the bringing to light of the Ayer temple of organized spirits. President M. S. Ayer, who founded the temple, is a Boston man who conducts a large and paying business. There is nothing visionary about his business capacity.

His band of disembodied persons, he explained to-day, include poets, philosophers and scientific men and women who have "passed out," but are still applying themselves to the perfection of communication between the spirit and the mortal plane. The mediums employed for receiving such messages are among the most enlightened and sensitive in the world.

"Some of the spirit controls," said Mr. Ayer, "know Professor James in his life and they are in harmony with him now. They are capable of breaking down the barrier between us and always prevented any spirit-to-earth communication."

Mr. Ayer declared James's message is what was related to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN by Mr. Ayer.

"I am at peace, at peace there some words could not be distinguished) with myself and all mankind. I have awakened to a life far beyond my highest conceptions while a denizen of earth.

"Tell my brothers that I will transmit a message through this instrument that will prove my individuality, when I can manifest more clearly than at this time. I did not realize how difficult it would be manifest from this plane of life to the mortal plane.

"There is much, very much for me to learn and many conditions to overcome."

The private seance at the home of Mr. Ayer was held at eight o'clock Monday evening. Some of the foremost Spiritualists of the world were present. Reference to Prof. James was made by any member of the party before the principal medium went under control.

The particular medium employed for the sitting was one who has served with the Ayers' Temple Band of Spirits for years. She knows them all and they are as familiar with her as though the element of mortal body did not enter into their associations.

FINANCE BOARD TO NAME SCHOOL SITE

The Finance Commission has taken up the problem of a schoolhouse site in Roxbury, which Maynard Pitzgerald turned over to that body. The Mayor has had three cities offered for the new grammar school in the Lewis district, one owned by William A. Gaston, one by W. T. A. Fitzgerald, and one by the Dana Institution for Savings.

In this case the Mayor desires the commission to select the best site for the city, all conditions considered.

PENNSYLVANIA R. R. OPENS $50,000,000 NEW YORK TERMINAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The opening today of the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnels under the East and North Rivers to the public marks not only the completion of one of the most gigantic engineering feats of modern times, but the beginning of a new epoch in railroad history.

For years the eastern railroads have looked with a jealous eye at the New York Central—the only railroad that ran trains on Manhattan Island. Passengers on all other lines were compelled to detrain at Jersey City or Hoboken and board a slowly moving ferry to reach their destination.

But the Pennsylvania has now gained the object for which it has worked for the past ten years, and has gone a step further. The passenger who wishes to go to Long Island does not even have to set foot on Manhattan Island. After the train leaves Newark it runs northwesterly to the heights behind Hoboken, and then, dipping into the earth, passes through the wonderful tunnel under the Hudson River and emerges in the new $50,000,000 terminal in the heart of Manhattan.

Leaving the noise and bustle of New York behind, it again plunges into a tunnel under the East River and runs on to the surface of Long Island. Fifty-odd trains in all run on the Island to Montauk Point.

Soon to Commuters.

The Jersey and Long Island commuters that the using the lines of the Pennsylvania are now enabled to make the journey to and from Manhattan without changing cars or bothering about the fog on the river.

But this great improvement represents an enormous outlay of money, and it is certain that the vast terminal, the handsomest railroad station in the world—and there have been many handsome ones built during the past few years—will be filled to capacity if the railroad is to get back the money it has spent.

But now that the work is completed the tunnels will be used by thousands of Long Island and New Jersey people who have heretofore found it necessary to change cars in the New York business section. Many of these people will now go direct to the city and will be carried to the very heart of the city and will not have to change cars or suffer the discomfort of the ferry trip. Manhattan is the financial center of the country, and the location of the Pennsylvania terminal is considered a very fortunate one for the railroad.

There are many reasons for the success of the Pennsylvania's new terminal. Not only is it the largest railroad station in the world, but it is the most complete. Every convenience for the traveling public has been provided, and the railroad officials have left nothing undone that will add to the comfort of the passengers.

The terminal itself is a monument to the ingenuity of the present day architects and engineers. It is provided with every known convenience for the past word.

Built after the Roman Doric style of architecture the building covers the area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The depth of the property on both streets is 760 feet, 11½ inches and the length of the building is 784 feet, 9 inches, thus allowing for extra wide sidewalks on both avenues. The walls extend for 450 feet, 6 inches from Thirty-first street to Thirty-second street. The main body of the building rises 106 feet above the street level.

In designing the building, the architects, McKim, Mead & White, sought an express, so far as was practicable, with tracks far below the surface and in the absence of the conventional train shed, the exterior of a great railway station in a generally accepted form, and the character of a monumental gateway to a great metropolis.

Apart from those facts the station was designed to give the greater number of facilities of circulation. The entrance is really a monumental bridge over the tracks, with entrances to the streets on its ends and on all four sides. In this respect the building is unique among railway stations of the world.

Has Mammoth Cloak.

The Seventh avenue facade, where is the main entrance, was conceived especially to carry out the idea of the monumental gateway. It is composed of a colonnade, which is double at the carriage entrances to the street ends and at the main front entrance for pedestrians in the center. Above the colonnade is an attic, which is surmounted by a clock with a seven-foot dial. The attic rises to a height of 150 feet above Thirty-second street. Each of the colonnades is 40 feet in diameter and 55 feet high.

The carriage drives at the Thirty-first and Thirty-third street entrances are each about 65 feet wide and 200 feet in length. A standard New York city automobile can pass directly through the entrance for fast moving traffic. The pedestrian entrances are 100 feet and 45 feet wide, flanked by the walls of the building. The interior furnishings of the arcade are the restaurants and the waiting rooms.

World's Largest Waiting Room.

From the arcade one enters the general waiting room, the floor of which is on the same level as the tracks. This room is the largest in any railroad station in the world, extending from Thirty-first to Thirty-third street, a distance of 315 feet, and from Seventh to Eighth avenues, for a distance of 277 feet. The height of the room is 150 feet and its width 103 feet.

The walls of the waiting room above the main body of the building contain 58 windows, three semi-circular windows of 24 feet 3 inches and 33 feet 6 inches and 58 windows with at the base. There is also a window of like size at each end of the waiting room.

In its general aspect this huge waiting room was modelled after the structures of Rome. Rose, green and gray are the colors used. Tiling and finishing and the marble of the construction. Probably the greatest examples in history of large masses in areas treated in a monumental manner.

Within the waiting room are located ticket offices and baggage checking and booths. Adjoining it on the west are two secondary waiting rooms, 50 and 100 feet for men and women. These open into restaurants.

On the same level with these waiting rooms on the main baggage floor, 200 feet of frontage, is located. This is for the use of express companies and covers the full area occupied by the arcade and restaurant on the plane above.

Special Baggage Subway.

Baggage is delivered and taken away through a special subway. From the baggage room trunks are delivered to the mail and express rooms, which are also on the main floor.

Directly to and connecting with the main waiting room by a wide passageway is the subway, extending to the subway station and under the adjoining streets.

This is the vestibule to the tracks. Stairs descend from it to each of the train platforms on the track level. Each staircase and adjacent areas are open to the street, forming a courtyard 240 feet wide by 210 feet long, bounded on all sides by a wall of iron and glass. In addition to these entrances to the concourse from the waiting room there are also direct approaches from the streets.

Auxiliary to the main concourse and located between it and the tracks is a sub-concourse sixty feet wide, which will be used for exit purposes only. This subconcourse is eighteen feet below the street and is connected with the track level by two stairways and one elevator from each platform. From it staircases and inclines lead directly to the street.

Available for traffic to the station are 21 passenger tracks, having increased rapidly from the two tubes under the Hudson river. To the east they converge again to the four tunnels leading to Long Island under the Brooklyn Bridge district, the busiest spot in the world.

The south work of the station, enclosing eight acres of ground, was completed on July 31, 1909. To enclose this area necessitated the building of exterior walls aggregating 2458 feet—nearly half a mile—in length, and required 100,000 cubic feet of pink granite. In addition there have been utilized inside the concourse 20,000 cubic feet of stone.

In addition to the granite the construction of the building called for the use of 27,000 tons of steel and 15,000,000 bricks, weighing 48,000. The first stone of the masonry work on the building was laid June 15, 1906. The entire masonry was also completed in about thirteen months.

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 8.—Congressman Butler Ames was a dinner guest in Springfield of Capt. W. S. Warriner and there conferred with friends relative to his campaign against Mr. Lodge for Senator. AUTO CONTEST RULE CHANGES ARE PLANNED

By J. C. KERRISON.

Changes in the American Automobile Association contest rules will be determined upon at a special meeting of the Manufacturers' Contest Association, to be held tomorrow. This meeting is looked upon as the most important one yet held by the Manufacturers' Contest Association, inasmuch as it will determine several important changes that should be made in the contest rules. These changes have been suggested as a result of the recent A. A. A. tour, stock car racing on tracks and a few questions that have arisen in connection with the forthcoming road contests of importance.

It will be remembered that an active committee on rules met at Niagara Falls in July, and adopted resolutions recommending changes, all of which have been sent to the members of the Contest Association. In carefully drawing up these recommendations, the rules committee was guided by suggestions submitted by manufacturers, non-members, and registered drivers, upon blanks furnished by the association, as well as by suggestions of prominent racing officials, including Chairman R. M. Butler of the contest board. What these suggestions and recommendations are will be made known at the meeting to-morrow.

Indianapolis is certainly offering some great trophies in contests. Already her officials are planning for the 1911 season, and have announced plans for an automobile race to be run next May, in which American cars will be pitted against the best of Europe for a purse of $25,000. The contest, as announced, will be for 500 miles, and is to be known as the Indianapolis Motor Speedway 500-mile international sweepstakes.

The purse offered is double any in the history of motor racing, and is divided into ten parts. The driver winning first will be awarded $10,000, the largest prize ever offered a motor race winner; second $5,000, and on down to $500 for the driver finishing tenth. In addition a trophy will be given for each position.

Entries will be limited to cars showing a record of at least seventy miles an hour. The cars must be under 600 cubic inches displacement and weigh at least 2,000 pounds. American Automobile Association rules will govern.

ARTIST EARLE TIRED OF "SOUL MATE" NOW SEEKS FORMER WIFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—No more affinities for "Affinity" Earle, the eccentric artist. He says he's cut them out.

Declaring that he made a mistake in seeking happiness in a kaleidoscopic change of soulmates, he has gone to Europe to ask his first wife to take him back.

Earle sailed under an assumed name and will go direct to Paris to meet Emily Fischbacher, whom he sent away so that he and Miss Julia Kuttner of this city might live together at his luxurious home in Monroe, N. Y.

He will ask his former wife to take their young child and rejoin him in domestic life.

It was also learned that Earle would use the compelling argument with his former wife that he had found affinityism had nothing on everyday married life and that he had decided to cut out soulmates in the future.

If Emily Fischbacher refuses to harken to the plea of the man who added a new and effective word to the colloquial vocabulary, Earle, it is hinted, might search the world like H. G. Wells, as well as other brilliantly eccentric authors, and there moved within him that artistic temperament which had previously been fed on Shelley.

"He decided to banish decency. Led further by evil influences of neurotics, he put his decision into effect and banished Emily Fischbacher.

"It was only natural that he should bend and kick his affinity under such circumstances, and it was quite as natural that he should get another and another.

"Naturally I strive to dissuade him from his polygamous notions, and after a long time I think I have succeeded, for it was not long ago, while seated on his porch, that he confided to me that he had decided to reform—that he had shaken off the evil influences of the English novelists and that he was aware of his folly.

"I believe him. I have never caught him in falsehood, and I think that if he can induce his first wife to return to him—she hates him now—he will stick to his resolve.

"If he cannot, then it is possible that he may scour the continent for a new mate."

ROOT KEEPS OUT OF NEW YORK FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Republican County Chairman Lloyd C. Griscom passed several hours with United States Senator Elihu Root, discussing the political situation. After the conference Mr. Griscom intimated that Mr. Root would not take an active part in the struggle between the friends of Colonel Roosevelt and the "Old Guard" for control of the Saratoga Convention. Mr. Root's position on the question of direct nominations, Mr. Griscom added, had been outlined in his public speeches.

The song hit, "Dreamy Eyes," sung in the musical production, "A Night on a Houseboat," will appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday American.

BIG MEXICAN CELEBRATION BEGINS TO-DAY

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8.—Mexico is en fete to-day for a foretaste of the great centennial celebration next week. The congress of Americanists was opened here to-day by Minister of Education Justo Sierra. This evening the new building of the foreign relations department on Avenida Juarez will be dedicated, a reception to the diplomatic corps following the ceremonies.

To-day is the Spanish national holiday, commemorating the victory in the eighth century over the Moors at Covandonga—an anniversary observed to some degree by nearly all Spanish Americans. It is also the anniversary of the defeat of Chapultepec in the war with the United States in 1847. The graves of Mexican veterans who were decorated by school children throughout the country to-day, and special services were held in all churches.

The preparations for the centennial are advancing rapidly and the indications now are that it will eclipse the American celebration of 1876. Advance exercises have been held for several days, including the dedication of the insane asylum at Mixcoac by President Diaz, the opening of the Hygiene Exposition, the laying of the corner stone of the new city prison, the dedication of the new seismological station and the amphitheatre of the National Preparatory School, the dedication of schools and flag parades by children.

RAGTIME BACK IN GOOD GRACES OF SMART SET

NEWPORT, Sept. 8.—Ragtime has returned to Newport, and it will be heard in the fashionable affairs given in New York this Winter, for it was introduced by Henri Conrad, director of Connely's Metropolitan Orchestra, at the dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames at the Newport Golf Club.

The new rag dance is called "The Grizzly Bear," and is on the order of the usual cakewalk ragtime, but there is more the a waltz movement at regular intervals, and it is danced in couples. Newport hadn't danced to ragtime for seven years.

In the gathering of dancers were Mrs. Astor, Mrs. William K. Lewis, Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer, Mrs. Ernest Iselin, Mrs. Austen Gray, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, Mrs. Charles De Lancey Outerbridge, Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas and Mrs. French Vanderbilt.

The fad of Rocksavage also danced "The Grizzly."

Conrad also introduced "A Bunch of Cabbages and Kings," which has been the Newport rage this season.

JERICHO, Vt., Sept. 8.—The election of Thomas Leary to the legislature marked the first Democratic victory in Chittenden County in fifty-two years. DOVER, Del., Sept. 8.—They are getting ready to use the sky for posting bills and soon all kinds of "ads" may be flaunted in the empyrean blue. E. Stuart Davis, a young aviator who brought with him from France the dirigible Zodiac No. IV., has organized under the laws of Delaware the Zodiac Sky Advertising Company.

CHILD PLEADS FOR FATHER'S RETURN

The pleadings of a young child have influenced Mrs. William H. Hale of 150 Hampden street, Roxbury, to make a public appeal to her husband to return to the home he left two years ago.

Hale is twenty-six years old, 5 feet, 8 inches high, weighs about 160 and has dark complexion. His wife is of the opinion that he is somewhere in New York State in a tannery. For a number of years he worked for The Rockwood Sprinkler Company.

"If my husband would only let me know where he is and how he is getting along, and send some money every so often for the support of our child I would not mind so over his absence," said Mrs. Hale. "I want my husband back, and I am sure little Dorothy does, too." Mrs. Hale can be found at No. 150 Hampden street, Roxbury.

HAIR QUESTIONS

That Nearly Everybody Is Interested In Having Answered.

How can I make my hair more beautiful? How can I stop it from falling out? How can I prevent the formation of dandruff and scales on my head? These three questions are easily answered. Use Birt's Head Wash. And these are the reasons: Birt's Head Wash is made of refined soap, which cleans away dirt, dust and grease; glycerine, which softens and soothes the skin and is a valuable healing agent; white of eggs, which removes scaly matter from the scalp; cocoanut oil, which gives the hair a beautiful gloss and sheen, and prevents the dry condition which results from using ordinary soaps or shampoos; salicylic acid, which is an antiseptic that removes germs, bacteria and disagreeable odors. Don't these reasons appeal to your common sense? Isn't it safer and better to use Birt's Head Wash, which is not a secret preparation, than to use something from which you have given the half a dozen? At drug and department stores. DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS CONFIDENT OF SWEEPING PINE TREE STATE

Bitterest Political Fight in Many Years Draws Near End.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 8.—The biggest political fight the State of Maine has known in many years is drawing to a close, and the result is conceded to be in doubt by close observers. The Democrats expect to elect Colonel Frederick W. Plaisted as Governor; the Republicans believe that Governor Bert M. Fernald, their nominee, will be reelected, but they are hardly as confident as the other side.

The facts are, as impartially as they can be stated, there are signs that there will be a big slump in the usual Republican vote in October or not enough Republicans will vote for Plaisted is something that will be answered only by a count of the ballots.

Both sides have made a great fight, but although Maine is strongly Republican under normal conditions, this year the G. O. P. has appeared to be up against it in many ways from the start. There is a lot of insurgent feeling on the part of the rank and file of that party. The tariff and attendant high prices has made thousands of votes for the Democratic candidate.

Plaisted Strong on Stump.

Colonel Plaisted is a fine campaigner. He is strong with the people. His personal popularity is a big asset with his party. The Democracy has also been imbued with a hope which it has seldom known in a State fight here. It scented victory early in the campaign. In fact, it was predicted before either party held a convention that Maine was going to shift on election day this year.

But the Republicans in Maine have one of the best political organizations in the country, and moreover they are great fighters. They did not lie down for a minute. They saw what looked like a tidal movement towards Plaisted and fought stubbornly, persistently and ably to stem it.

They have behind them the great advantage of a big normal Republican plurality and it is a question w . . . r the Democratic nominee can pull enough Republicans away from Fernald to land a winner.

Has National Importance.

It looks as if the Fernald plurality would be a small one, if he wins at all.

This is something which the Republican organization does not like to contemplate. They do not want the country at large, which is watching Maine in his fight, to say that the G. O. P. vote slumped. That would help Democrats all over the country in their campaign to control the lower branch of the next Congress. It would lead the insurgents in the West to think that New England Republicans are of the same factional views as themselves.

The result in the Republican primaries in New Hampshire, where Robert P. Bass, progressive candidate, swamped Bertram Ellis, the organization choice, at the polls was very cheering to the Republicans in Maine who want new men in control of their State party.

Maine Democrats rejoiced to see the Republican vote in Vermont fall off. The election in the Green Mountain State certainly had a dispiriting effect upon Maine Republicans. There has never been an "off year" campaign in this State which attracted such widespread attention.

War On the Bosses.

Usually in presidential years Maine is watched closely because it is regarded as a pretty fair barometer of how the voters of the United States feel. But there have been few presidential fights in which the vote of the Pine Tree State was considered more important than it is now. Some of the stalwart Republicans here think that their party needs reform and that the best way to get a new deal is to beat all the machines and all the bosses.

The Republicans here have no fear but that the State will line up Republican under normal conditions. But conditions from the Republican point of view are certainly abnormal at present.

Usually the Prohibition question looms up big in a Maine State battle, but in this one it has not been much of a factor. Republicans have not sought to force it forward as an issue and the Democrats, not caring about provoking the effects of a discussion in the rural districts of the rum traffic, have been content to sidetrack it as far as possible. The city populations in the State do not take kindly to the enforcement of the prohibition law by a commission named by the Governor, and it is taken for granted by the average observer that if the Democrats carry the State next week they will try to have the whole matter resubmitted for a vote by the people.

Resent Power of Rickers.

There is a big element in the Republican party which would be willing to see Colonel Plaisted elected Governor if his success at the polls would mean the downfall of what they call "the Ricker crowd." The leaders of the latter are Edward Ricker and Hiram W. Ricker of Poland Springs. Most of the politics in Maine attributes Governor Fernald's rise to Ricker backing. But if what is said about the Ricker influence is true Governor Fernald ought to be the candidate of the insurgents. His friends control several of the most important newspapers in the State, and some which attacked Speaker Cannon, Senator Aldrich and Representative Payne and made it so hot for Senator Hale at home that he announced he would not seek reelection.

There is talk to the effect that one G. O. P. faction is ready to sacrifice Fernald if they can elect a Republican Legislature. In case the Legislature is G. O. P. it is said that Senator Hale may look to for another term in his old seat in Washington.

The coming fight for the United States Senate seat is something of a factor in the present gubernatorial contest, although just what effect it will have it is hard to say, owing to the innumerable ramifications which exist.

Powers Leads Revolt.

The candidate of the men who want the Republican party in Maine put under the direction of a new organization is Judge Frederick A. Powers of Houlton. The candidate of the "standpatters" is former Governor William T. Cobb of Rockland, who has always been a friend of Senator Hale. In fact, in the event of certain contingencies, it would not much surprise the State at large to see Cobb retire from the field if that course would land Senator Hale back in Washington.

There is something doing in Maine just now in regards to congressional battles. The Democrats expect to carry the First and Second Districts, but the Republicans are much more confident of success in these campaigns than in the one they are waging in the State at large.

In the First District the Republican candidate is Asher C. Hinds, one of the most gifted parliamentarians who ever sat in the House of Representatives. The Democrats claim that former Sheriff William M. Pennell of Cumberland County, their candidate, will beat Hinds at the voting booths.

Swasey of the "Old Guard."

In the Second District the Democrats have named D. J. McGillicuddy, a Lewiston politician, as their choice to defeat John P. Swasey, whom the Republicans renominated. Swasey is one of the "Old Guard" who has been bitterly attacked as a "stand-patter." But he has many adherents among those who do not approve altogether of his political course in the House of Representatives. McGillicuddy must wipe out a Republican majority which reaches anywhere from one to several thousand before he can down Swasey. The demand of the people of the district for McGillicuddy is for a sweeping and overwhelming defeat.

In the Third District the Republican candidate is Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta, who was renominated, while the Democrat who is running against him is Samuel W. Gould of Skowhegan.

In the Fourth District the candidates are Frank E. Guernsey, Republican, and Democrat. Guernsey lives in Dover and Foxcroft, and George M. Brown of Hanson in Calais.

The Prohibition party has a ticket in the field. James H. Ames of Benedicham is the candidate of the "Drys" for Governor. The candidate named for that office by the Socialist party is Robert V. Hunter of Freeport.

It is believed by most political observers that Congressmen Burleigh and Guernsey will be reelected, but there is no question but that there is a fight going between Pennell and Hinds, and there is some doubt as to the result in the Second District.

Break Party Lines.

On the whole it appears to be easier to hold the voters to party lines in the congressional contests than it is in the State battle. The Republican leaders wanted to win in Maine and no mistake. When they made campaign plans they prepared for a whirlwind finish. The G. O. P. is great on the homestretch in Maine, and it is probably true, as leaders claim, that the State ticket has been gaining some in the last few days.

Byron Boyd, chairman of the Republican State Committee, had the assistance of former Governor John F. Hill, now chairman of the Republican National Committee, in picking out orators to toe the Maine mark. The list of spellbinders which it was decided to draft included Congressman Nicholas Longworth, Ohio, son-in-law of former President Roosevelt; Congressman Edwin Denby of Michigan, Joseph H. Gaines of West Virginia, Duncan E. McKinley of California, Ralph D. Cole of Ohio, J. W. Fordney of Michigan, Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts and Ruben O. Moon of Pennsylvania. There was a small army of other orators put on the stump.

While the Republican machine has been doing its bold the State is indicated by the fact that they have covered Maine with republishers as never . . .

On the other hand the Democrats have been up and doing every minute. The kind of work done by State Chairman Beatty of Haliowell is illustrated by the circumstances that in Cumberland County alone fifty rallies were arranged for by the Democrats. Early in the fight the Republican rallies were not very well attended, while the Democrats who were stumping the State had good crowds everywhere at the start. It was when the G. O. P. machine rally got into the attendance at their political meetings indicated that the party as a whole was waking up. It has been wide awake for three weeks past.

The State is now in the turmoil of political excitement and there will be no let up anywhere along the battle line until the votes are all polled. It looks as if the total vote was going to be a very big one. The Republicans have gone after almost every man in the State who ever voted their ticket, and in the rural regions especially cars have been taken to see that nobody who will support Fernald or the local congressional candidate neglects to go to the polls.

There is more interest taken this year in the probable political complexion of the next legislature than ever before, but the Republican campaign managers are pretty well satisfied that they will have a good working majority there. There has not been much discussion on the part of the people of the issues raised in the party platforms. The Democrats are pledged to economy, the repeal of the Sturgis Law and its resubmission to a vote by the people of the question of constitutional prohibition, as well as to the election of United States Senators by the people. The Republican platform is of the standpat variety. It is particularly so on the prohibition question.

There is one thing which must be taken into consideration in regard to this campaign and that is that while Maine has very seldom bumped the Republican party very hard the G. O. P. plurality is likely to fluctuate in an alarming way.

Reduce Republican Lead.

The Republican pluralities, in fact, have ranged all the way from 48,000 for Governor Powers in 1906 to 7,573 for Governor Fernald in 1908. The latter has had a rocky time of it in this fight. He has had to cover so much territory that he could not find time to go to Portland and be the guest of honor when the monument to Thomas B. Reed was unveiled there. Instead he had to be up in the backwoods making explanations.

The Democrats have had Fernald on the defensive most of the time. He has been called upon to explain what became during his administration of the surplus in the State treasury when Governor Cobb retired and what became of the big sums appropriated by the Legislature last year. He explained that the State has been taking a lot of burdens off small towns and that the money has gone straight back to the people. He is not an eloquent orator, but is a good talker, and his talk is pretty convincing to country folks.

The Maine people in general are pretty sore over the new tariff and that is going to hurt Republican chances considerably. But only the returns will tell just how much.

Pledges Made in the Democratic Platform

The Democratic party of Maine, in convention assembled, declares to the people of our State that, if entrusted with power, it will

1. Reduce the State expenditures and readjust our tax system so that no direct tax shall be levied by the State except that which is necessary for the economical administration of State affairs, the improvement and maintenance of our highways, the support of our schools and the careful maintenance of our charitable institutions.

2. Enforce the laws by means of regularly elected officers, repeal the so-called Sturgis law and resubmit to popular vote the question of constitutional prohibition.

3. Demand the election of United States Senators by the people.

4. Endorse the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States relative to the taxation of incomes.

5. Enact a corrupt practice act.

6. Demand a direct primary law.

7. Remedy the existing conditions whereby for twenty-eight years this State has been misgoverned by politicians, who, caring more for succession in office than for State's progress, who are neither or either Republicans nor Democrats as their political fortunes may have dictated, have exploited Maine to the incalculable injury of her citizenship. These politicians have saddled an annual expense of $4,000,000 upon our people and upon our homes. They have entrenched an army of office-holders; they have persistently nullified the fifth amendment to the constitution; they have spent $153,707.56 since 1905 in the pretended enforcement of a law they themselves have repudiated. They have set at naught counties' rights of police regulations. They have increased the State expenditure 300 per cent. in twenty-eight years, while the population shows a growth in the 1900 census of but 7 per cent. in the same period.

8. Pledge to the nominees of this convention and to the local candidates of our party our earnest and undivided support, and call upon all men, regardless of party, who desire good government in Maine to join with us in bringing about those changes which shall enable this State to take that place among the sister States which it once held and which of right belongs to it.

Strong Insurgent Sentiment Dims Chances of the Republicans.

DENY A 'JOB' FOR PEACE IN BALLINGER ROW

ST. PAUL, Sept. 8.—United States Senator Duncan Fletcher of Florida indignantly repudiated a story in circulation here and in Minneapolis to-day that the split in the Ballinger-Pinchot committee which has precipitated a situation likely to delay ultimate decision of the issue for months was deliberately planned in order to avoid having to bring matters to a head at this time.

Senator Nelson would not discuss the statement being so broadly circulated that strenuous urgings from Washington reached the committee room that some way out be found for the present when the fact had been learned that a majority of the investigating committee would probably vote to oust Ballinger.

Pinchot's Great Popularity.

The situation developed out of Gifford Pinchot's extraordinary popularity in the National Conservation Congress and in the banquetings and other functions now being held here caused some strenuous communications to pass between Senator Nelson and high Washington officials during the last few days, if information obtained to-day is correct.

Senator Nelson is said to have pointed out that the exoneration of Ballinger and shelving of Pinchot, or even the mildest criticism of the latter in a report at this time, might and probably would make him a martyr, and in a greater sense than ever a public idol.

Trouble Expected To-morrow.

The two factions in the split committee are meeting to-day in Minneapolis for informal discussion of the situation. That to-morrow's meeting will be a warm one is declared by all members now on the ground. At the same time the Democratic members of the committee and their opponents in the Ballinger report are evidently the best of friends, for they hobnob together during the evenings and apparently confer whenever hostility they may feel to the inside of the committee room.

Senator Fletcher of Florida and Senator Graham of Illinois began work early to-day in the preparation of the report to be presented for the committee's consideration when it meets to-morrow.

BALLINGER MAKES BITTER ATTACK ON HIS DETRACTORS

SEATTLE, Sept. 8.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, talking at the Arctic club smoker given in honor of Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, and Attorney-General Wickersham, spoke bitterly of his detractors.

"With my consciousness of rectitude of my every act in private and public and my determining to go forward in the same path, I do not fear the criticism of any man or set of men," said the secretary.

"I do not propose to enter a plea of guilty, because there is not one particle of truth in all the allegations brought against me, and I shall take none of your time in making a defence, for in this community there is no defence."

Secretary Ballinger was received with long applause from his hearers when introduced by U. S. District Judge Cornelius Hanford, who made the Ballinger-Pinchot committee meeting in Minneapolis the subject of his remarks. The judge declared that Mr. Ballinger had been singled out as the subject of the malevolence of muckrakers, and characterized the action taken at Minneapolis as "an outrage unparalleled."

PRESIDENT TAFT BACK AT THE LINKS

BEVERLY, Sept. 8.—It was "back to the golf links" to-day for President Taft. Returning from the West yesterday afternoon, he lost no time in arranging for a golf match on the Myopia links for to-day with John Hays Hammond and Captain "Archie" Butt. After breakfast the President motored over to Myopia with Captain Butt. There they met Mr. Hammond. The match was on speedily.

WHITNEY AND RAINEY DISPUTE OVER TROPHIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—While the Arctic steamship Boothie is being unloaded off City Island to-day friends of Harry Whitney and Paul J. Rainey, the wealthy explorers of the Far North, are wondering what will be the outcome of a serious dispute which has arisen between the two over division of the valuable Arctic animals and furs which were brought back as trophies of the polar trip.

This dispute is the culmination of a long squabble between Whitney and Rainey which began at almost the very start of the voyage from Boston last June.

When the Boothie returned to this latitude and docked temporarily at Bristol, R. I., Mr. Whitney went to New Haven. He declared that Mr. Rainey, who had financed the trip, refused to allow him a single one of the skins or furs which had been secured. He declared that he would take the case to the courts if necessary.

Mr. Rainey remained aboard the Boothie, which came to rest over and later to City Island. He declared that the matter had been amicably adjusted. A meeting between the two was arranged for last night at the Holland House. But Mr. Rainey failed to appear. Mr. Whitney, who had come over here from New Haven, returned to his home in that city on a late train.

The Boothie brought back, in addition to furs, several live animals. These include two polar bears, six musk ox, two walrus and a blue fox.

PARTY OF 5 WALK FROM PORTLAND

They left Portland Monday, making fifteen stops. Inspector Harry Pierce, whose guests they were, met them at Police Headquarters. The men took the same route a year ago, but this year they lowered their record by three hours. The party will attend the aviation meet and then ride home.

LYNN MERCHANTS GO TO RYE BEACH

LYNN, Sept. 8.—Two hundred Lynn merchants, intent upon a day's outing, went to Rye Beach, N. H., to-day, the entire party going over the road in automobiles. Politicians of both parties were barred from participation in the trip and references to the political situation in city, state or nation, was tabooed by agreement. A shore dinner at Rye Beach formed the leading feature of the day.

TWENTY LIVES LOST IN A HURRICANE

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 8.—Advices received to-day from the interior indicate that a score of persons lost their lives and property damage running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars was done by the hurricane which swept the island and its waters Tuesday and Wednesday. It is feared that several small ships not included in the first reports of loss went down.

SPEED BOYS BATTLE ATHLETICS HERE IN SECOND BIG GAME

TYRUS COBB WILL NOT LOSE EYESIGHT, DECLARE DOCTORS

MIGHTY POLE AND INDIAN TO CLASH ON MAT

Gama is matched to wrestle Zbyszco. In who has been something of a sensation in England in the wrestling revival, is not likely to be seen in American rings during the coming Fall and Winter, or any other time. Those wiseacres who had it figured out that certain American promoters were grooming this clasp for an invasion of the grand old country will have to revise their dope now.

Gama is matched to wrestle Zbyszco in London next Saturday. It is to be a finish match and from the present indications the Pole will fill the Indian handily.

Should, however, Gama be returned the winner, his manager, H. Benjamin, has enough engagements to sight in Great Britain to last him for the coming ten months. Inasmuch as there is much coin in this style of progressing, much more than could be obtained by tackling the tough game he would find over here, Benjamin and his Indian troupe will be four of them in all—will remain in England.

MACK SAYS THE ATHLETICS HAVE RED SOX GOAT

Connie Mack—the only Connie Mack—was captured for a few minutes after breakfast to-day by the AMERICAN baseball reporter, and a pleasant conversation, which took in almost every subject with one exception, followed.

That exception was the world's series.

Connie Mack has a very early breakfast, for a baseball leader. He was up before any of the team, possibly because the team had such hard work winning Wednesday's game that they hadn't got over the effects. At any rate, Connie was up with the birds, and left the dining room at the hotel in a very pleasant frame of mind.

It was then that someone tried to get him to say something about the Athletics vs. Cubs in the world's series for 1910. The question didn't make the flow of conversation any swifter. A clam in a sand bank is a howling mob compared to Connie when the world's series is mentioned.

Connie Cut World Series.

"That's something I never talk about," he said, with an emphasis on the "that" and also on the "never." Which of course settled it.

"It's too far ahead," he said, "and it isn't good policy. Is there any thing else I can do for you?"

Well, what do you think of our own Speed Boys?" was the next question fired by the man looking for news.

"Just what I've always thought. They are a grand good team, one of the best of the lot. I never thought anything else. They certainly can play some. They showed that yesterday. A grand team, I call it.

"Yesterday's game was one of the best I've seen for a long time. It was a pitchers' battle from the word go. I believe that Bender should Collins a little, but at the same time, I want to give a word of credit for that young man. He pitched a good game—an excellent game. A little thing would have thrown the game one way or another. Nobody won that game until the very last minute.

Athletics Shade Red Sox.

"Boston has always put up a good fight against us. But we have shaded them just a trifle, I believe, throughout the year. You see (Mr. Mack mulled a little) we have been winning from the Red Sox right along. This makes twelve games out of the sixteen.

"But mark you, I shall never believe for a minute that the playing of the two teams is in proportion to that 12 to 4. No, Boston is much nearer the equal of the Athletics than that. There is such a thing as luck in these games. We aren't always lucky, but I think that the Athletics have had a shade on the Red Sox all the time. But it's a great team."

"Who looks good to you for next year? Do you think Boston will win out, or do you think that the Highlanders are going to last us out for it?" asked the inquisitive one.

Mr. Mack smiled again, this time quite broadly.

Picks Detroit for Second.

"I don't think either of them will get it," was his reply. "Honestly, I think that Detroit will find itself in second place when the season closes. Where the other comes will be I don't know.

"At the same time, you know, I may be wrong. Nobody can figure out that next to a third place team. It's going to be as it looks now, I believe that the Tigers are going to beat out both Boston and N. a York. But I may be very much mistaken. That's just my belief and it's nothing I can be sure of.

"The whole reason for my belief is in this one thing: Detroit has a long series at home left to play. Boston hasn't. New York hasn't. There you have it. With the Red Sox away from home and the Detroit team on their own grounds for practically the remainder of the season, that's where you get your answer."

LUNDIN VICTOR IN BOUT WITH PERELLI

John Perelli met his master in a rip-roaring wrestling match at the Columbia Theatre, when Lundin was declared the winner in two falls out of three. The bout was full of action. Perelli bringing his well known rough-house tactics into play, but had as an opponent a man who was no novice at this style of wrestling. After twelve minutes of fast and furious work Lundin secured a full Nelson and put Perelli's shoulders to the mat for the first fall. After ten minutes' rest, they went at it again, and this time Lundin secured his famous toe-hold on Lundin, who was forced to succumb in six minutes. After a brief breathing spell they started in the third and last fall. It looked as if Perelli was going to win, but when Lundin secured a full Nelson and secured a scissors hold on Joe Perelli was forced to give up the fall and the match. The last fall was secured in five minutes.

WOMEN PLAY GOLF MATCH IN BALLROOM

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 8.—The Bretton Woods golfers were forced by bad weather to make an innovation in their putting tournament, and a "links" was established in the ballroom of the Mount Pleasant House, where tables were stretched of rugs, chairs and other impediments.

The women's prize was won by Miss E. Perry, who was the only round under 40. Miss L. Sweetland with 50, but who made 25 to Miss Sweetland's 30 in the playoff. The men's cup was won by Elmer Ponder with a 37.

All up for the second game of the Athletics-Red Sox series at the Huntington Avenue Grounds this afternoon. Nobody can pick a winner. With yesterday's game as a criterion, be faster or more exciting games will be played on the home field than those two which are at hand.

Primed up for the series the Red Sox are determined to win double battle, and show their supporters that they should be more ready at the top than they are at present. In no series of games this year has the rivalry been any greater than it is right here and now.

Connie Mack's men have won twelve times out of the total of sixteen games played. And he is confident of winning some more. On the other hand, with Boston having pitching that Donovan is not afraid of any other Philadelphia pitcher, and hopes to win the series by two games. Ray Collins pitched a rattling good game yesterday. He was outpitched by Bender, an error of the most flagrant kind, and a single run was the result. Collins has seemed to characterize his games against the men from Quaker City through out the season.

A closer game would be hard to find than yesterday's. It was anybody's game until Hooper went to bat for Purtell in the ninth and Bender gathered in a hard hit ball retiring the side. And the game went for ten full innings besides.

The average fan, analyzing the two teams, would say that they are evenly matched, and that neither team has anything on the other. Accordingly, Whoever wins, the fans are sure of seeing one of the best games of the season.

Over in New York the Doves are still trying to get at the Giants. They have already lost two out of the four games, and unless a win comes this afternoon Fred Lake's hopes for an even break are dashed to the ground. The Doves made their plants go some, and in fact have the happy faculty of nearly winning from almost every team they come with. Once in a while they carry out the idea to its fullest extent and run off one for the most unexpected fashion. This is just what they hope to do to-day. Then with Tyler and Parsons, the two Lowell pitchers, joining the team, they hope to take a brace and pull out ahead of Brooklyn.

UHLAN OUT FOR RECORD TODAY

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 8.—Uhlan the great trotting king, tries to break the track record over the Charter Oak Driving Park, to-day. In a work-out mile Uhlan made the last half in 1:04.

The fastest events of the stakes races to-day is the $10,000 Charter Oak. Other races carded are the 2:20 trot, 2:05 pace and 2:11 trot.

Over 10,000 persons saw the 2:14 trot and the 2:12 pace, events postponed because of rain.

There were five starters in the first heat of the 2:14 trot, in which Orlean and Husky Harry broke badly at the half mile and both were distanced. Bliss and Bervalde were making a close race of it in the stretch when Bliss left one and Bliss went under the wire by a neck. The time, 2:07 and 2:06¼, was close, the horses being bunched until a short distance from the finish, when Bliss let out and won by a narrow margin, with Bervaldo second and Oliver E. third.

The 2:12 pace, with only three starters, was won by Joe Boy, Mike Wilcox taking second money and Dr. Fox third.

The song hit, "Dreamy Eyes," sung in the musical production, "A Night on a Houseboat," will appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday American.

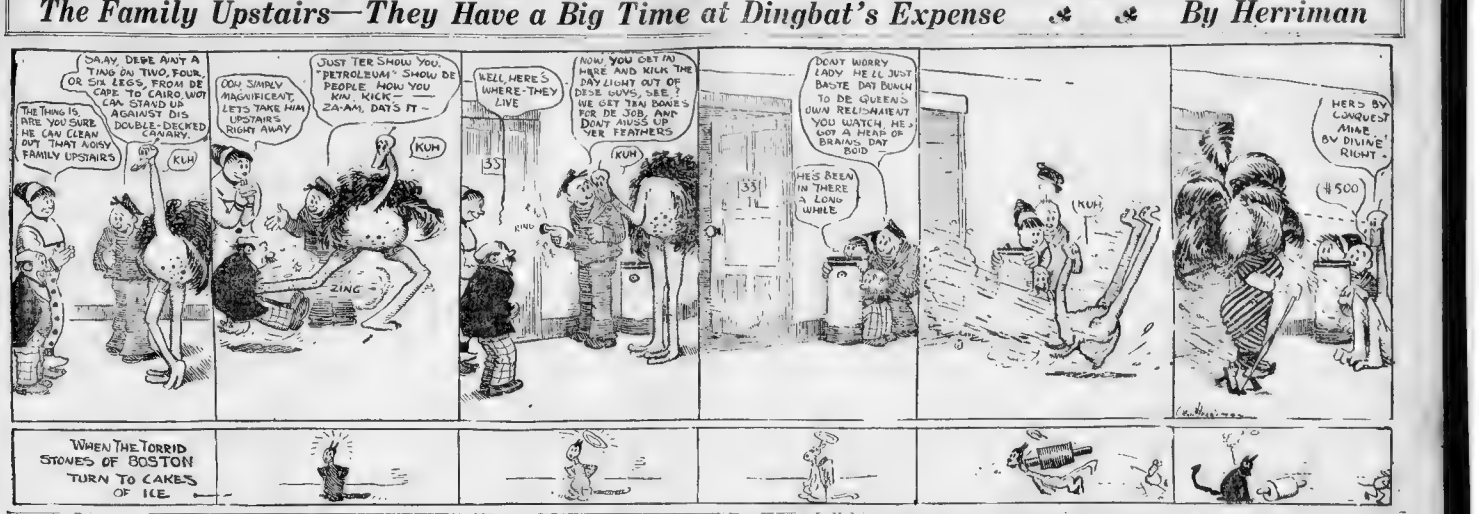
BOSTON HORSEMEN REAP HARVEST IN BIG BETTING RACE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

STAHL PREDICTS RED SOX WILL WIN PENNANT IN 1911

The Family Upstairs—They Have a Big Time at Dingbat's Expense — By Herriman



BOSTON HORSEMEN WIN ON BELVASIA

By DOC STANLEY.

More wise money went to the incinerator when the crack trotter Belvasia, 2-12¾, defeated Scientia, 2 10¾, in straight heats, at Hills Grove, yesterday, than upon any race seen over a New England half-mile track in probably twenty years.

Both of those unbeaten trotters had an army of supporters. The result was that there was not an excellent reminder of the good old days with speculation of big proportion, such as we used to have in years past, and before the coming of the melancholy days for New England horsemen.

Still there was never a time when Scientia, Fred Hyde's handsome black son of Admiral Dewey, 2 04¼, had a look-in with Belvasia, the wonderful four-year-old daughter of Bingara, owned by D. W. Caton of Lexington, and superbly driven by Jimmy O'Donnell.

From every corner of Connecticut came a host of horsemen to pay tribute to Scientia, and practically all reported trotting choice splendidly. For over two hours the boys from Hartford, New Britain, Waterbury and way stations carried the battle for Scientia at 5to, with the Boston and Providence horsemen loyal to Belvasia at 4to, and it was a real old war for fair sure

Wise Men Hard Hit.

Just what the ensuing carnival of cuts of the two noble steeds made Scientia such a favorite among the wise men is hard to discover. It was soon the first Hyde had stepped the track at Readville in 2 10¾, while Fred Hyde's best mile at Charter Oak was in 2:11¾. Belvasia had been making a splendid racing campaign, while Scientia had had no race since the defeat of McGuffin, 2:17¼, at Hills Grove.

Behind close watch and Scientia's the seven to speak in the field of seven starters, in all three heats of the race led easily, but Belvasia was always right while a length behind. Time and again Scientia, with Fred Hyde in the sulky, made a move to get to the front, but Belvasia was always in front when the real test came, while Fred Hyde, seeing he could not win, held on with the stallion

Nothing finer in horsemanship was ever seen in New England than Fred Hyde's attempt in the second heat to overtake with Scientia the flying daughter of Bingara. But try as he would the Charter Oak driver could never reach the flying leader. Hyde made a great try at the three-quarters in the second heat, but a pilot break spoiled his chance after he had succeeded in reaching the wheel of Belvasia. With six lengths lead over Scientia, the clever Belvasia with no one to force her in, still regulated the second mile in 2 13¾.

Smashed Track Records.

Belvasia's third and record mile, when she smashed all trotting records for the Hills Grove track by stepping in 2:12¾, was a beautiful performance, and still Scientia was eight lengths away at the finish. Fred Hyde raced at Belvasia's wheel all the way to the half in this heat, where Scientia tired, and was never a factor after the half way station was passed. Belvasia has been a big favorite over Belvasia in that third mile, registered in 2:11¾, she might have lined up a marvelous mile for a half mile track.

There was never a time when the remainder of the field, comprising Boden, The Baron, Madge Worthy, Iona Grey and Emperor Wilkes, Jr., had a look in.

Heard at Hills Grove.

The Boston boys certainly cleaned up Monday upon Belvasia, and they were a very happy crowd coming home. There were few tickets before the first heat that were for less than $125.

• • •

Jack Doty, of the Delaware Driving Club of Wilmington, is leading judge at Hills Grove. He is figuring upon a field of starters at Mount Holly Park, Medford, Columbus Day, October 12.

• • •

Chester Pike turned in a superb bit of driving in the mile race for the class of starters upon the New England tracks around.

• • •

Manager Cook of Pequot let was at the races. He says the racing in his town next week will continue for a four days' card.

• • •

The well known pacer Kellercliffe Lad has been named for the 2:13 pace today at Hills Grove, is very sick and the veterinarians are by no means sure of saving him.

• • •

Ed Sanborn turned around a neat little purse racing stallion during the past week, who took a mark of 2:16¾, and then he sold him to Fred Lamp of Waterbury for $1. He is a handsome fellow, five years old, a clever brush horse, and has the making of a swell pacer.

• • •

A feature of much interest to Boston horsemen was the starting of the popular gentleman trotter, Willie John, 2:24¼, of the Dorchester and Old Colony Driving clubs in the 2:21 pace at Hills Grove. He was upon very bad behavior and distanced in the first heat. Willie John was second choice to Crash, and sold for $20, while the favorite was at $40.

• • •

New England horsemen will be pleased to learn that ex-Sheriff John H. Collingwood, owner of the Hills Grove track, and the fine estate surrounding, has been restored to his accustomed health. He has been the guest, with Mrs. Collingwood, of Fred Pierce at Stanisteed, Que.

• • •

Charlie King, the crack pacer owned by A. T. Wheelock of the Dorchester Gentlemen's Driving Club, is carded to start in the 2:14 pace, purse $500, at Rutland, Vt., to-day

• • •

There was much talk of the clash of drivers, Bevier and Pitman, in the 2:27 pace. The latter had the favorite and the winner, Fred Peirce, and Bevier was behind Lemont. They had a very hard ride and both were sent at each other with whips. Both should have been fined, if not suspended.

• • •

Kentucky Belle 2 18¼, has made wonderful strides since Lester Dore took hold of her. She has the making of quite a pacer, although a very light walsted little mare.

• • •

It was a pretty solemn Connecticut bunch that came back to the hotels after backing Scientia. All that seemed to be really needed was a band to play "The Dead March in Saul."

• • •

The next meeting at Hills Grove will be for two weeks in October. There is every promise of a big meeting, and the plans are well under way.

• • •

This crowd upon the half mile tracks are a queer bunch. There were a lot of them at the race with all manner of excuses for Manager Parker why they should be allowed to pass the portals without paying 50 cents, and they worked like dipdomats to escape buying a ticket. And still they would lose $200 or more upon Scientia with never a whimper.

• • •

Johnny Marston made three clever drives with the chestnut mare, Lady Laurel, in the 2:27 pace, but he did not have the speed to overtake Oliver Direct.

• • •

Louis Gray has sold the pacer, Queen Wilkes, 2:16¾, to John Callahan of Taunton, and the pacer, Lady Clare, 2:28¾, to M. McCafferty of the same city.

• • •

Leroy S. Grant ("Grunty"), the well known Providence horseman, is sick, and unable to be at the track and is greatly missed. The veteran has had a hard siege with some stomach affliction, but is now better.

• • •

"Jock" Bowen, over four score, took in the races with much interest.

RED SOX 1911 VICTORS--STAHL

Jake Stahl, the Red Sox first baseman, believes the Speed Boys will cop the pennant next season. He spoke on baseball in general and the Red Sox's chances for 1911 at an informal luncheon at the City Club.

Jake Stahl believes we will lead the pennant in 1911," said Stahl. "The other players feel the same, in fact, we all felt that we would win this year, but the consistent work of the Athletics has been marvelous. Their team has been intact all season, and when you notice that their four pitchers are among the eight leading pitchers in the American League you can understand how great has been their pitching.

J. C. Morse, secretary of the New England League spoke on Baseball from the standpoint of a New-paper Man."

"I've found much in common," Dowst, and there were cavers laid for fifty.

COBB WILL NOT LOSE EYESIGHT

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—According to Ty Cobb's physician, the report that the speedy outfielder is in danger of losing his eyesight is greatly exaggerated. The present inflammation is but a trifling matter, but the player has been ordered to take a rest. A few days are expected to remove the trouble with proper rest and care.

But an examination of Cobb's eyes discloses that the Detroit batsman sees but one eye in batting. His left eye is normal, but the right is near-sighted and is partly closed when he stands at the plate.

Cobb did not accompany the team to Cleveland.

PHILLIES TO TRY OUT DRAFTER MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—The Phillies are preparing to try out some new wood in the closing days of the National League season.

Gfrard drafted from Yorke has divided league honors with "Levity" George, who goes to Indianapolis. Culp of the Pittsburg Collegians reported yesterday, and Knight, a fielder, has been brought from Albany. Mason, a halfbreed Indian, has been secured from Shreveport. He is an outfielder. Shortstop Lobe, who played under the name of Lewis for Kewanee, will also join the squad in a short time.

WOLGAST BUYS FARM; NEEDS MONEY; REASON, HE'LL FIGHT PACKEY

SOME persons think Ad Wolgast are not business men. Some are not, but some of them are both and very much on the job.

Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion, bought a new farm adjoining his old one near Cadillac, Mich. He needed the ready money to close the deal. He sat down and wrote out this telegram:

"Cadillac, Mich. — To Tom Jones, Milwaukee, Wis.: Just bought that farm. Need five thousand with-in thirty days. Clinch match with McFarland with that amount for my end. Don't let him get away.

"AD WOLGAST."

That's why, too, there wasn't so much trouble over the weight. Wolgast believes he can trim McFarland at any old weight. He has taken a chance before and is taking another now. He is a pretty fair business man. They won't break him very soon, anyway.

KETCHEL HAS THREE FIGHTS IN EUROPE

CHICAGO, Sept. 8. While in Chicago today Stanley Ketchel accepted a theatrical offer made by Hal Harris to tour the Northwest late in the Fall. That he doesn't intend to drop out of the pugilistic limelight is evident, for already Ketchel has booked for a tour of Europe, where he expects to engage in three fights. He thinks that his last battle will take place at the London Sporting Club with Tom Thomas, the British heavyweight, as his opponent

STRAIGHT TIPS

FOR SPORT FANS

JACK TWIN SULLIVAN AND HIS CHIEF second, Brother Mike, are the busy kids. Jack went into the ring at the Armory club Tuesday night, and after the preliminary stunts declared that he wanted to meet Bill Lang, the Kangaroo Kid, who handed Al Kaufman a few wallops Labor Day. Jack and Mike are booked for an engagement Friday night at the Fremont Social and Athletic Club. They're going to put on a four-round singing and dancing bout, which ought to be the real thing in these reform days. Also, Mike and Jack are figuring on going on the stage. Who guys, those?

YOU'VE GOT TO HAND IT TO FIRE Allen every club this week. That four letter[illegible] between Ho Sam and Jon Jeanette, the smoke with the lady like French moniker, was about as good as anybody has pulled in these sleepy parts for many long, dreary, rainy days. Jeanette pasted his left at Sam so often that he'll qualify for an automobile photo, and he hammered Sam's ribs in the clinches like he was working the bass drum stunt in the Symphony orchestra, but Ho He was right there at the finish. He handed out seven right uppercuts in the engagement that made [illegible] mop ok like the heart of the Hercules. Ayer Dr. Shirley Wirt would rate Sam [illegible] a draw for the most Sam did was stall, except when Jon slipped him a good one and got him mad. The Boston Scrap can't do any worse execution than he did Tuesday night. Jack Johnson will kill him. But Sam's got several aces up his sleeve all the time.

"'May be so,' spons I, 'but lots ink who do very fine a I is gittin' in trouble. I done need not' one mo han I is de penitentiary for is a' too handy wid his pen.'

"'Why don't you want yo' chile to learn how to write?' says de man.

One Safe Way for a Rich Man

"'Because' says I, 'de is a makin' for dollars a day now, an' dat chile a gwine to be rich, an' dere ain't no way dat you can perfect a rich man from writin' fool love letters except by keepin' him from learnin' how to write 'hassle,' says I, 'I specis to see de day when all dat is

Mirandy had serious objections to having her son learn to write, as she foresaw the many dangers from penmanship.

millionaire can do will be to make his X mark when he goes to sign his name, for like kind an' lovin' parents, what has been anxious to do dere duty by him, has kept him from de writin' class lak dey has from de scratchin'.

"'Well,' spons de man, 'maybe you'se correct in yo' judgment for de letter-writin' is all wholly is a expensive amusement, an' it costs a lot of money, an' especially when a rich man gets his pen run away wid him in de direction of a female.'

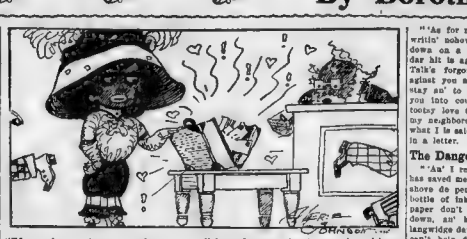
"'Twin 'de true word,' spons I, 'an dat's why I'se determined to save my little Teddy Roosterfelt of I can. Thank Lord' says I, 'dat I se got enough sense to take temptation out of dat boy's way, for I'se set up an' listened whilst May Jane read to me de burnin' words dat a lot of dese leah millionaires has subressed to dere "Ducky Daddies" an' "Kiddlekins," an' "Pussy Cats," an' dat has been worth dere weight in gold when hit come to set dey day.

57 Varieties of Fools

"'Lassie, nobody don't know how many fifty seven different kinds of a fool dey can control dey roots dere love letters spread it in de newspapers, an hit must make somebody rise up an' send a passel to dere everybody chucklin' over 'em as dey come up in de street cars.

"'Now, hit used to be sort of a polite accomplishment for a man to be able to turn off a nice lil'ticko wit lots of poetry in hit, an' a coolin' his lady love a angel an' a turtle dove, an a sugar lump, an' a sendin' her ten million billion kisses, an' a handlu' out a few lies about how he was a countin' de hours until he could see her again.

"'But dat was in de good ole days before lady loves had found out dat love letters had a cash value dat was good at de pawn shop. In dem days hit was safe for a man to dip his pen in de ink and rop his legs around de table an' on to let hisself go, an' write all de things dat he didn't have de nerve to say to, an' dat looked good to him on paper. Love warn't no cum-back on poetry den, for a love letter was den a love letter, an' when a man got tired of a gal an' moved on to an older dat was younger an' purter, an' had a mo' straight front figger, why, dat was de end of hit.



"Ef you knows how to write you can't keep from writing too much, an' love letters comes high when de jury sets de price."

"'She des tied up her ole love letters wid a faded blue ribbon, an' put 'em away, an' of she got married to somebody else she burnt de letters up befo' marriage, so dat her husband wouldn't have no line on her past performances, an' of she didn't git married she kept 'em to shed a few tears over an' prove dat she hadn't got de go-by in de love line.

"'Den bit was safe for a man to write letters, but now hit's as risky a thing as goin' up in one of dese hear aireyplanes, for when a man passes up a gal in favor of another she don't set down an' cry over his ole love letters. Nawm; she packs up a dress-suit case full of de mos' sizzlin' ones an' hikes out for a good lawyer. Yassir, some of dem millionaires' love letters already is interestin' reading, an' de older de men is de mo' excitin' is de letters dat dey writes.

"'As for me, I ain't got no opinion of writin' nohow, for once you put anythin' down on a measly little piece of paper dar hit is against you tell Judgment Day. Talk's forgot, an' dey can't prove hit against you no way, but writtin's dere to stay' an' to rise up against you an' haul you into court. I'se done talked outer-tooby love talk, an' I'se done slandered my neighbors, but thank God, no matter what I is said, I ain't never writ hit down in a letter. I can't write.

The Danger of Writing Letters

"'An' I reckon dat's de only thing dat has saved me, for dem what knows how to write de pen when he sets down wid a bottle of ink an' a quire of good white paper don't seem able to hold dereselfs down, an' keep from usin' highfalutin' langwidge dat dey don't mean, but dat dey can't help from slingin' around, jest to show dat dey could write as good stuff as dem poet men, of dey had de mind to.

"'Now, sir, of you knows how to write you can't keep from writin' too much, an' love letters comes high when a jury sets de price on 'em.' Mo'over, we don't find out how big a fool a rich man is ontel we reads the letters dat he wrote to his little coozy-kootsy, daddie-diddems; an' dat's de reason dat I thinks dat Sis Pericles' sacred duty to pertect dere sons—ef dey has got any prospects—from de danger of learnin' how to write.'"

The Future of the Race

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Examiner

THE world is awakening to a belief in the great power which lies in the mind of the mother and the father, before the birth of a child, to help shape its future.

A[illegible] father [illegible] what his wife shall read, and do, and what her diet and exercise should be, in order to produce a healthy, good and beautiful child.

An expectant mother has made a similar request.

Women ought to note the conduct of animals at this period and in some respects [illegible] them. There is a female animal [illegible] to be about to [illegible] she acquires a gentle, [illegible] life very peaceful and [illegible] and [illegible] during the months before [illegible].

A [illegible] acquaintance resolved that [illegible] be a musician, and [illegible] she did [illegible] to the [illegible] and [illegible] every concert [illegible]. Her boy grew a [illegible] and, dislikes music, and [illegible] at the sound of it.

Inherit Suppressed Tendencies

She would have obtained her wish, should, and she listened to good music when possible, without [illegible] and if she had pleasantly thought about it, instead of strenuously singling it, children more frequently take the mother's suppressed tendencies—the things of which she thinks rather than the things which she does on the tastes and abilities which she freely indulges.

When a mother is working constantly at some task and tiring her mind and body, she leaves nothing to give to her child. Very hard work and no exercise at all are both injurious to the mother and unborn child.

In the countries where women are the burden bearers and the drudges generations degenerate in health and stature.

A reasonable amount of exercise in the open air every day; agreeable subjects for the mind, books which stir the best impulses of the nature; books of biography [illegible] of good people. Interesting historical stories of noble deeds and of love and romance, and the best of the New Thought literature, are all to be enlisted for the entertainment of the expectant mother.

Should Guard Thoughts and Diet

The careful reading of these books and magazines will do much to keep the mother's mind wholesome, hopeful and [illegible].

To see beautiful objects of art, statues and pictures and scenes of nature, to listen to music and attend interesting lectures, will benefit both mother and child.

And nothing to think the child is to be a blessing and comfort, and is to bring to the world a new wealth for its inheritance, will help to fashion a creature of good sense and power.

Such thoughts should be particularly invited at night, just before sleep, in order that they may [illegible] the subconscious [illegible] of repose.

[illegible] an expectant mother should be adopted to her particular needs by a physician who is also a food chemist. Different organizations require different

Mothers who are so situated that they [illegible] the books and magazines and subscriptions herein suggested can [illegible] much for their expected children by [illegible] their own thoughts, and persistently refusing to be gloomy, angry or [illegible].

And the father who cannot give his wife all the comforts which wealth affords can at least give her all that love, patience and sympathy provide, and that will do more than all the rest in shaping a soul according to the Divine Plan.

The Champion Optimist

By KENNETT HARRIS

"SIM HACKEN'S uncle in Kansas City's done died an' left Sim two thousand dollars," the clerk of Creek man informed the store circle. "Sim allus did have luck," he added. "He beat the wheel of fortune at the county fair last Fall, an' he had his house burned down a week after he'd got it insured."

"I've knowed lucky fellers like that git ten years in the Jefferson Penitentiary," commented Old Man Somerindyk.

"The comp'ny paid the insurance," said the Goose Creek man.

"Then I reckon he was in luck," admitted the elderly cynic.

"You can't most allus tell about this here luck," remarked Washington Hardcock. "It depends a heap on how it finerly turns out. I heard a feller allow that it wasn't safe to call no feller forchalt after he was daid, an' there's a right smart o' truth in that."

"Depends on whether he was havin' a good time when he was alive I sh'd say," opined Ebed Baxter.

"That works both ways, too," said Hancock. "There's mighty few of us has a good time here an' hereafter. But whether a feller is lucky or not depends some on the way he looks at it. There was a feller in Buchanan, name of Jerul Perkins, that didn't have a nothin' but luck, one way he looked at it. The first time I seen him, he was wallerin' in a foot o' mud with a hoss collar straddle of him an' hammerin his face with his fists. Finely the man let up an' this yer Isrul spat out a toot an' begun to laff.

He Thought Himself Lucky.

"'Dogged if it hain't the one that's been pesterin' me for clost on a year,' says he. 'I'd jest make up my mind to have Dee Elkins pull it for me an' Dee would have charged me four bits, any way.'

"I got acquainted with him soon after that an' kep' track o' the lucky things that happened to him. There was the time he was sleepin' his barn an' fell off the roof thirty feet to the ground an' didn't no bones break but he laig in two places. We was plum tickled to death over that. Most fellers would have broke their doggone necks if they'd fell that height, he says, 'but I—well, it's luck, I reckon. I don't claim no merit that's due me.' It's built bonded luck. No good for it. Judgment or anything like that. For no I knowed I might have landed on my hand on a rock.

"Another time the Drovers' State bank busted, an' the next day I seen Isrul on the street lookin' as happy as ever an' feebly more so, an' I ast him what he was feelin' so good about.

"'I got reason to feel good,' he says; 'I had good luck yestiddy. I just happened to come into town no particuler reason for nothin', only I needed a spool o' barb wire an' a drink or two. Might have put it off till next day, jest as well as not. I'd wanted me to wait, but I says, "No, I reck on I'll go today." If I hadn't, you know what would have happened. I had three hundred an' seventy-five dollars in the bank an' I'd have lost every dad blame cent of it.

"Well, I met up with Ed Goddard an' he told me that John Pierce had a couple o' shotes he wanted to sell cheap, so I goes into the bank an' drawed out thirty dollers, aimin' to buy them shoats. They paid me the cash money right across the counter, an' I shoved it down in my jeans. Ten minutes after that, Jim Perkins, the cashier, shet down the little winder, double-locked the front door an' put up a sign tellin' that the bank was closed. Now, what for sure?

"'How about the rest of the three hundred an' twenty-five?' I ast him.

"'Well, co'se that's tied up right now,' he says, 'but I'll get it some time or 'nother I won't, but I allow I was in thunderin' big luck to get what I done got,' he says. 'I'm $30 ahead, or I would be if I hadn't loaned Henry F. Smith $25. I'm $5 ahead, anyway.'

"I ast him if he'd lost me the five an' he handed it right over to me.

"'But ain't I a lucky cuss, Wash?' he says.

"The only time I ever knowed him to doubt it was when Marietta Sharp went back on him an' married Walt Ames; but when he seen Walt with his face all marked up with Marietta's finger nails not a year after he concluded he'd been playing in luck sure's ever.

"About a year after that he got married himself an' then, by jinks! he thought he'd got the richest streak ever did come his way. There's a heap o' young married men gets the same idee an' then gits over it, but when a merciful and over-rulin' providence removed her from this here vale o' tears an' sorrer, he said he'd bet he could go into Wall Street, New York, an' clean up a million inside o' twenty-four hours.

"'One time he got the rheumatis powerful bad an' I went to see him. 'Too bad, Isrul!' I says.

Glad He Wasn't a Shad

"'Oh, I don't know,' says he. 'If I wasn't here in bed, I'd be out shuckin' corn or I'd ort my do bats to shuck co'n. An' then Mis' Wanchope brung me a book about critters an' I seen where there was a fish they called a shad had four hundred thousand, six hundred and twenty-three bones, or theresbouts. If a shad ever got rheumatis, he'd cert'nly have one Sam Hill of a time with all them bones,' he says. 'I allows I'm in almighty big luck I'm not a shad,' says Isrul.

"Hold he ever get hard but five he loaned you?" asked the storekeeper, offensively.

"I disremember that part of it," replied Washington Hardcock. "But if he ever did reckon he was lucky I didn't have ten dollers of easy money stid of five. It's all in the way a fellow looks at it, as I said."

"I only had one streak o' luck that way," said Old Man Somerindyk, gloomily. "That was when ever-buddy in Torleone had the yellow fever an' I didn't ketch it."

"I didn't know you was ever in N'Yorleans," said the storekeeper.

"Neither did I. I never was," said Old Man Somerindyk.

Forget and Forgive

By Beatrice Fairfax

HERE is an appeal, sent in by a young man, who apparently has fallen out with his sweetheart.

I do not know who was to blame in the failing out; but, unless the cause was very serious, if I were "Nellie," I would forget and forgive. The young man says the following lines describe his sentiments absolutely:

"Why not be as we were of yore,
Good friends at least, if nothing more?
Why is it that, now, as we pass by,
You always avoid my anxious inquiring eye?

If I am not too bold, I'll ask you to state
What I have done to deserve the fate
Send me just one short, sweet epistle
Say you will be like the rose, not the thistle

There have been some moments since we have met,
No matter what happens, Nellie, dear, I'll never forget.'

He is willing to go more than half way, he will be thankful for mere friendship, if Nellie cannot love him, as in the olden days.

Straight from the Heart

This poetry may not be of the most finished, classical type, but it comes straight from the heart, and sincerity is more important than style in this case.

If Nellie really does words, I advise her to sit right down and write the note he asks for, and let it be a kindly, forgiving note. Be friends with him and tell him what he has been offered you.

I don't like to criticize my own sex, but girls are quite manufacturers of quarrels out of whole cloth. I think they do it for the fun of seeing the men who love them writhe in perplexed misery.

I know just one case where a man finds himself embroiled in a quarrel when he hasn't the least idea what it's all about.

How Quarrels Grow

Let me tell you something, girls. The most few quarrels are romantic and exciting, at very many they come to be either tiring and only bring misery.

Don't be angry with the man you love for every quarrel shows you in an unlovely light and leaves a scar on your love.

When you find out that you cannot get on without disagreements, you had better break friendships. If you have small quarrels before marriage you will have big ones after.

Never be ashamed to say you are sorry, nor to take the first step towards reconciliation.

Between those who really love there should be no such thing as false pride.

In novels sweethearts quarrel and make up again, and the plot goes merrily on. But you are real people with real passions for good or evil, and no author can twist you around to suit his plot.

"Forgive and Forget"

You must guide your own little ship of life.

But take a tip, take helm and take "Forgive and Forget" for your motto and all will be well.

HOW TO DEVELOP THE BUST

Wonderful as it may seem, we have found a simple, harmless way to develop the bust. It is the discovery of a well known woman physician who used it with remarkable success in enlarging her own bosom and then won the gratitude of scores of her lady friends.

If you are flat-chested, scrawny, have sunken chest, or if your bosom is full, but not firm, you can easily and quickly develop your bust to perfection. Do not hesitate a moment, but write at once to Mme. Du Barry, 4 Du Barry Building, and tell her you want her secret. This treatment is not recommended for anything but developing the bust, and is guaranteed to do this or money back. Full three weeks' treatment costs only $1.00 at the hands of experts. Idyll

STAY, traveler, now, and hear the lonely shepherd
Breathe on his slender reed full sweet and clear;
Piping to rustic valleys how ye hear
Where cheerful hens to grow and wander
[illegible] grass
Or shallow brooks; to thy sad heart that labors
Spent with desire, he brings perchance a dream
Or men and maids dancing to flutes and tabours.

O traveler, have a care when night is falling,
And see the [illegible] of the forest
[illegible]
For [illegible]
When misty-robed singing rivers flow
Shall call you, mindful of your discontent,
In starless dusk to follow where they go
And evermore to seek the way they went

To-day's Best Story

IN the old days when oral examinations were still the thing, an examining board was pumming an applicant with questions from Burgersdicius, Kent and other famous legal lids.

"I didn't study anything about these fellows," complained the applicant.

"What did you study?" asked one of the judges.

"I studied the statutes of the State," he replied. "I studied them hard. Ask me a question about them and I'll show you. That is where I got all my legal knowledge."

"My young friend," said one austere judge on the examining board, "you had better get busy and repeal everything you know."

CHAPTER XXI.

MR. LANE was at his desk in the president's room of the Fourth National Bank of Springfield when his secretary brought him the card of Mr. Leo Randall. The new employe was ushered in immediately.

Jimmy greeted his friend and employer with a smile of delight. Happiness in his new estate as an honest, straight-living young man shone in every line of Jimmy's countenance. He looked the capable, intelligent young chap that he was. His dress was faultless.

"I am ready, Mr. Lane," he said. "I can take my desk this moment if it is ready for me."

"Very good," replied the bank president. "but I don't want you to work the first day of your arrival. We had better look over the town and drop by home for lunch. I know that Rose will be glad to see you, and if I did not bring you home for lunch and she knew that you were 'a town she would send me prosecute I'll warrant."

"Glad as you say, Mr. Lane," said Jimmy. "I have found a nice little bachelor apartment not far away from the bank, but on a side street. I expect to work pretty hard until I have my position in good grasp.

"I'll keep you busy, so don't worry on that score," laughed Mr. Lane. "It is time to begin work on the financial statement and I am going to turn that task over to you. Do you feel quite capable of it?"

"I shall do the best I can, and if I need any help I shall not hesitate to ask for it," the new accountant replied. "It has been some time since I handled books, but I think the work and I better I'll get back into the stride without much trouble."

Rose Hears of the Arrival

Mr. Lane finished the few small tasks he had ahead of him and then picked up his desk telephone, asking for his home number.

"Hello, Rose," he called. "My new accountant is in town. Yes, just arrived. How's that? Yes, I wanted to ask you if you could take care of both of us at lunch. How are the cashiers? All well? That's fine. All right, Rose. Good-bye."

"And now, young man," he said, turning to Jimmy, "I'll take a half holiday in honor of your arrival."

A few directions to his secretary, and Mr. Lane put on his hat, and the two of them walked into the bank proper.

Jimmy was introduced to the bank manager, the cashier, his assistant and the other employes. There was a pleasant word of greeting from each and Jimmy's heart warmed with satisfaction.

Here, indeed, would life be bleak. He strolled the floor of the new to Mr. Lane's employ. They were the faces of healthy well-fed contented workers.

As they went into the street, he was able to get a glimpse into the character of his employer as they chatted.

"I pay all of my people just as much as I can possibly afford," said Mr. Lane. "Nothing grieves me so much as to hear of a paying teller or bank clerk stealing, being caught at it and then, through the newspapers, learn that all his life he has been struggling on a salary that just barely kept him alive. It is a poor policy to have bank employes feed the pitch of hard poverty and then treat them with the pennies of other people. Some bankers never seem to find that out.

"They are a quietly shod-looking set of young men," Jimmy said. "I know that they're going to be kind and considerate of the newcomer."

"I am sure of it also," declared Mr. Lane. "I have been careful to select each class of workers in my bank. They are all men of good families, the majority of them married and, whenever I can, I go out of my way to give them bonuses each New Year's day."

Thus chatting, the two walked over the prettiest part of the city, Jimmy getting more at ease with every foot of the way. When they started for home, the paroled convict thanked his Maker deep in his heart, for he felt that he had found a good kind father in his employer, and he knew that, with such a feeling, nothing could ever happen to make him regret having turned straight and that it would be the height of stupidity and folly that he would ever live otherwise again.

Rose met them at the front door of the big, comfortable, roomy home of the Lanes. She waved to them as they entered the garden gate and started up the gravel walk.

Her mother had been dead three years, and she had taken her place in the home. She was the mistress of the house and a good, capable one, too. Her little brother Bobby and her little sister Kitty found that she filled the place made vacant by the mother's death, while Mr. Lane fully realized the treasure she was to him.

Rose had tucked a camellia in her soft brown hair. She wore a simple white dress with sleeves that barely reached the elbow, showing her well-turned arms. A blue ribbon was about her waist. In her eyes was the smile of the morning in Spring.

'How Beautiful,' Thought Jimmy

"How beautiful!" thought Jimmy. "and, oh, how sweet and pure!"

A big lump came into the throat of Lee Randall, alias Jimmy Valentine. His heart was a bottomless well of gratitude to her, but it wasn't the gratitude that made him feel weak, suddenly, and not dare to try to speak. Here was the symbol of all that was clean, and beautiful and holy in life. She stood as the finest type by the short footprint of man to represent the things that are finest and best, and most blessed in life. And my felt as if he was back in the sanctified days of innocence and youth.

"I am so glad that you have come," he heard her saying, and the music of her voice was heavenly to him. "I was afraid something might happen to prevent your coming. I was uneasy."

Jimmy, in his embarrassment, found he was fairly clinging to her hand and suddenly called it away with some words.

"Why, now, Mr. Randall," she continued with a laugh, "I know that you are safe. Nothing can harm you. I am the keeper of the whole brood, and I shall take excellent care of you."

The luncheon was ready, and they went to the dining room, where there sat by Rose's side of old mahogany and where the light from three French windows struck upon old silver goblets and plated in the many facets of fine cut glass pieces.

Great bunches of sweet peas were on the stately sideboard. In the centre of the dining table was a great bunch of big, old-fashioned roses which were reflected in the silvelike depths of the mahogany board. The dishes were set upon little doilies of lace that was the glory of the grandmother piece of wood might not be hidden.

The butler went to the sideboard. Jimmy heard the clinking of a silver spoon against glass. Then the old fashioned man mixing his toddy, that stone drink before dinner which has for years brought contentment and peace and gratefulness to the heart of a host.

There was a very mild one for Rose and one for Jimmy.

"We are very temperate," explained the banker, as he took his seat at the head of the table bowl. "But I'm glad to see, with a smile, "we follow the injunction of St. Paul and take a little for the stomach's sake."

"To your being with us, Mr. Randall," toasted Rose, lifting her glass.

Jimmy bowed and sipped of his drink.

"It will be terrible when I wake up," thought Jimmy to himself. "I am dreaming that I am in Paradise."

CHAPTER XXII.

IN the first year of his new and useful life Lee Randall, alias Jimmy Valentine, went beyond the expectations of his employer. He showed originality, energy and capacity for intelligent work. In that time, he mastered every detail of the bank's management and put in operation new plans for increasing the business, plans which brought results.

Mr. Lane was delighted with the achievements of his protege and grew as deeply in love with him as ever, showered her pride in his success.

It was a year of complete happiness for Jimmy. He clerked in the bank, had the good sense not to break himself with overexhaustion, had a nice, splendid body in fine shape, never missed the tennis games with Rose and her friends, and was the head and spirit in all their shade and charming amusements.

But for Jimmy, as he realized that Rose was waiting for him to speak to her and ask her in marriage, he felt his heart both pain and fear.

Society Set Busy With Wedding Plans

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Well to the fore among the important weddings of the week will be that on Saturday, at quaint old King's Chapel, of Miss Ethel Rooney, daughter of Fletcher Rooney of Bay State road, and Malcolm Burrage Lane, Harvard '08, son of the late well-known musician, Benjamin Lang and Mrs. Lang of Brimmer street. Miss Rooney is a Vincent club girl and a prime favorite in her select set. She is following the latest edict of wedding fashion, to have but one attendant, her cousin, Miss Eleanor Allen of Beacon street, whose pretty, dark coloring will be in striking contrast to the pure blonde loveliness of the bride.

J. A. Lowell Blake is to be the groom's best man, while the list of ushers includes Harriott of the Tennis and Racquet club, Gordon Hutchins, Alfred Whisor, Jr., B. P. Rooney, Dr. Edward P. Richardson, Harris Livermore, William G. Nickerson, Dr. Channing Frothingham, Donald T. Lyman, Basil Ahlborn, Francis H. Byrne and Robert Wendell, Jr., who married Juliet Higginson in June. The ceremony is directly followed by a breakfast at the Ranney residence.

The bridal gown is of white satin and lace, while her going-away gown is a handsome creation in tones of wisteria.

Mr. Ranney has granted his daughter with the residence at No. 162 Bay State road as a wedding gift and it is there the young couple will reside upon their return from the honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodolph L. Agassis have closed their Newport season and have returned to Hamilton for the Fall.

The Walter Denegres will remain at their West Manchester estate until November when they are planning to sail for Europe. Their pretty young daughter, Miss Eleaine Denegre, will remain here to at tend school.

The Harry Pratt McKeans, who are at Pride's Crossing, will return to their estate, Pine Run Farm, Penllyn, Pa., about the 15th of the month. They will be in Philadelphia for the Winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward House of Texas and their daughter, who are at Magnolia are planning to spend the Autumn in Toledo. Mr. and Mrs. House are the parents of Mrs. Randolph Tucker of Chestnut Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Grafton St. Leo Abbott announce the engagement dance this evening at their home, Holderness, for their daughter, Miss Middelthan Henry Abbott, who is shortly returning to Annapolis.

The Augustus P. Gardners are also to have a dance for young people this week at their Summer place, Sagamore Farm, in Hamilton.

Miss Hildegarde Lassell, older daughter of the Chester Lassells of Whitinsville, is being warmly welcomed by her numerous young friends in society since her return from her extended stay in Europe. The Lassells are to be at the Puritan this Winter.

The Leverett Tuckermans have deserted the Nahant colony where they spent the Summer and have gone for their annual trip to Europe. Miss Ellen Bullard of Commonwealth avenue has also sailed for an absence of several months.

Richard M. Bradley and his daughter, Miss Amy Bradley, have returned to Manchester after their trip of several weeks over the Canadian Rockies as far West as Seattle.

Mrs. Amory Eliot and her pretty daughter, Miss Rosamond Eliot of Wildwood, Manchester, are to sail from New York on the Mauretania September 12, and will remain abroad until April. Miss Eliot is to spend the Winter in study, preparatory to her debut a year hence. Her sisters are Mrs. Alfred Codman and Mrs. Richard Sears Lovering.

Major and Mrs. John Bigelow have left Boston permanently, much to the regret of their numerous friends here. They have been for a brief visit in Newport, and have gone on to make a stay of several weeks on the Hudson. Their Summer home is at Richland Falls, N. Y. For the past two Winters they have had a home on Brimmer street.

The Rev. and Mrs. Henry Hallam Saunderson of Cambridge are returning the last of September from an extended tour on the British Isles and the Continent. The Saundersons sailed early in July and have been travelling constantly ever since.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Zerrahn have returned to their Milton estate from a fortnight's visit to friends at Osterville. Miss Constance Zerrahn is prolonging her stay on the Maine Coast and will not return for a couple of weeks.

If You Were Neighbors

By WINIFRED BLACK

THERE'S a little girl in the town where I live, a pretty little girl.

And she can sing, and she can play on the piano, and she can sew, and she can weed the garden, and she's as good as gold and as bright as a brand new silver dollar.

But her father is a drunkard.

Not the sort of drunkard that you read about in tracts. He does not run away from his family nor neglect them. He gives them a neat little house, well furnished and well provided, and when he is sober he's as good as gold to his wife and to the children; but once every two or three months this man gets drunk, and then he comes home and calls his wife names and swears at the children.

The other day the neighbors had the man arrested, and they took the children to the Juvenile Court and tried to get the judge to put them in an orphan asylum. The mother of the children was in the courtroom, and she was a gentle little creature, with great, sad eyes, and a voice full of love whenever she spoke her children's name. The neighbors admitted that the mother was a good woman and a good mother, but they didn't want the children to learn to swear, they said.

The Judge gave the children to the mother and told her to take them home. Then he lectured the man, and told him that if he were ever complained of again he would take the children away from him, and the wife, too, for that matter—and the woman slipped her trembling little hand into the husband's when the Judge said this, and the man's rough face began to work, and when he tried to speak he could not.

Then the man who drinks, and the wife who loves him, and the little children who are theirs, went home.

And what do you think the neighbors did?

Did they go to the man and say, "Neighbor, we want to believe in you. We think you want another chance, and we're going to give it to you. Let's forget all this trouble and start in new again."

And did they speak kindly to the woman, and did they take pains to show the little girl that they loved her and admired her, and wanted to help her?

They did not.

They laughed at the woman and called her a fool, and they twitted the little girl, and mimicked her father and called her names, and now they are telling her that every little girl in her class at school shall know all about her disgrace—and the little girl has lost the pink that was in her cheeks, and she doesn't sing any more, and when she sees any one looking at her she hangs her little head and looks like some delicate little flower withering on its stalk.

And the man owns his little home and cannot take his family away from the neighborhood, as he would like to, and—what would you do about it if you were one of the neighbors?

USE OF TRIMMINGS

FOUR of the last few season's gold and silver trimmings have been fashionable. A glimpse at many of them reveal a badly tarnished state. Wrap all your gold or silver trimmings in black paper and you will find that they will remain untarnished through many seasons. All trims should be wrapped in black paper also. A good quality of tissue paper should be used, and, if this is not practicable, use a heavier grade.

COFFEE STAINS

THE stains left from coffee may or may not be removed from the most delicate silk, woolen, or chiffon garment by brushing with pure glycerin. Then brush with lukewarm water and press on the wrong side. The glycerin absorbs the coloring matter.

APPROPRIATE CONDITION

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It is regarded as likely that there will be no decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the general freight rate increase matter until after the Fall elections and this will tend to conservatism in the trading in securities.

The bears have learned in distrust the absence of what is known as backing support and have come to a relization of the fact that when these interests seem lazily are dormant they are very much on the watch.

The attitude of the leading financiers in the Street is an added factor of confidence. They are not so much concerned in immediate market movements, but look further ahead. The belief that they are not unfriendly to the market is one of the things that keeps the bears in a hopeful mood.

$ $ $

To all appearances the undertone of the market is strong. In spite of the selling that has been going on for some time, just who is doing the selling is not known even to the specialists who execute the orders, as the latter come to them, as a rule, in a roundabout way.

$ $ $

Any rise in the market at this time may be attributed, at least in part, to such declines as have occurred in commodity prices. Good crops and rising crops also have a stimulating effect, but are not enough in themselves to carry an advance very far until the political situation is somewhat clearer.

Until the Maine & New Hampshire election has run out of the way there promises to be more than usual tenacity in the stock market, with no tendency toward a rise of consequence. In the minds of some the falling off in the Republican majority in Vermont was not a bad card.

Dullness in stocks is driving many professional traders to the commodity markets, where there is active action in quite the most sensational. The Hide & Leather affair is fully as bad as the Hocking Coal & Iron situation in some respects it is worse. Several directors said that they had subscribed for stock taken from time to time and were secretly grieved that Brittain had let it was no one of the body as directors to volunteer the truth, even though requested to do so by the newspaper reporters. HOLD RICH AUTOIST FOR DEATH OF GIRL

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—"Guilty of criminal negligence," was the verdict found by a coroner's jury in the case of Edward T. Rossiter. The jurors believe that Rossiter motor car ran down and killed Grace Hoadley, 19-year-old daughter of a policeman, August 18. It is charged that Rossiter's machine put on speed and fled after the collision. The coroner refused to admit Rossiter to bail to-day, but said he would consider the question to-morrow. The chauffeur, Milton Fichelser and his friend, Lewis Rosenberg, both of whom were in the car, were held in $10,000 bail each as accessories after the fact.

TRACKMEN PLAN A UNION POLICY

Many contests are promised at the election of officers of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, holding its annual convention in Boston. Secret caucuses are being held by the American House in support of various policies which delegates will endeavor to have adopted. There is much competition for the seven vice-presidencies.

There will be no candidate against Grand President A. B. Garretson, but Lewis Hall will also, in all probability, be no opposition to the re-election of Secretary-Treasurer Flagg of St. Louis, the secretary-treasurer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—In anticipation of a favorable crop report the opening of the stock market in Wall Street to-day was moderately active and higher. Amalgamated Copper was heavy and Leather preferred showed continued weakness, falling to 104. The cotton market opened steady with September cotton strong. The curb market opened moderately active and irregular. American shares in London were dull and showed fractional changes in both directions during the day. Copper stocks were also dull and heavy.

MORMONS TO QUIT UTAH FOR MEXICO

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 8.—Hamilton Smith, a priest of the Mormon church, who has participated in the close of a sale of 50,000 acres of land for the Mormons to the state of Coahuila, Mexico, is authority for the statement that President Diaz has received assurances that polygamy and all other practices of the church will be permitted without interference in Mexico. Smith says that 2000 people will abandon Utah in the no far distant future and settle in Mexico, where they will not be prosecuted for their religion and its practices.

CENTRAL SIGNAL STRIKE SPREADS

ALBANY, Sept. 8.—In response to a general order for a strike, twenty-nine signal men quipped by the New York Central on its Hudson River and Mohawk divisions quit, according to the railroad officials, who say their places were immediately filled by experienced men. The company claims it suffered no inconvenience, and anticipates no further trouble.

TWO CAPTURED AS TRAIN ROBBERS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—Albert Jullen, hunted as the murderer of Fireman Wise in a train holdup in this city, was captured by the police. He denies he killed Wise. Emil Freund of Chicago was arrested also and confessed, the police say, that he and Jullen planned the holdup of the Burlington Pacific Coast Express train in the St. Louis yards.

HOW BIG IS BOSTON? CHANCE TO WIN $50

How big is Boston? Every one wants to know. What the census figures will show is something every one in Boston is thinking about now. The Boston American will give $50 in cash to those who make the nearest estimates to the population of Boston as shown by the census taken this year. Send your estimate to the Boston American. Fill in this coupon:

My estimate of the population of Bo ton is.....

Name .....

Address .....

Cut out this coupon when filled in and mail it to CONTEST EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, P. O. Box, No. 227, Boston, Mass.

This is a splendid opportunity. Everyone is interested in the figures the census enumerators are giving out. Everyone who lives in Boston wants to know just how big this city has grown to be, how much it has increased in population in the past ten years.

The Boston American just to stimulate the efforts of those who are thinking about this now, will give $50 in cash to those whose estimates come closest to the official figures the Census Bureau will give out, showing how great this city is. Men, women and children may compete. The prizes are to be awarded as follows:

Twenty-five dollars for the first estimate.

Ten dollars for the second best estimate.

Five dollars for the third best estimate.

One dollar each for the next ten best estimates.

The population of Boston in 1905 was 605,000. This was 11 per cent. greater population than shown by the official census of 1900. Now if Boston has grown at the same rate for the past five years Boston is a city of 629,868 persons.

This, however, is but an estimate. One estimate until the real figures are made public is as good as another. The official figures may be far different from this estimate.

Now is the time to get busy and make out your estimates and send them to the CONTEST EDITOR, for the census enumerators are likely to issue their figures at any time now.

Secretary of State Olin announced to-day that the time for filing direct nomination petitions under the Walker-Bushong bill will expire at 5 o'clock to-morrow night, instead of to-night. The extension will help materially in the matter of signatures to the petition blanks. The Walker bill provides that the petitions must be filed sixty days before the State election. The unofficial mathematicians had figured to-day as the day, but Secretary Olin is willing to interpret the law generously. Before filing, all petition signatures must be certified by the local registrars of voters. The Fourth Essex district, the district and the Seventh and Eighth Plymouth and Twenty-Third Middlesex representative districts are the only ones for which complete sets of petitions have been filed. Petitions which lack the signatures of the necessary ten per cent of the voters have been filed for several districts. The filing of enough additional signatures before 5 p. m. to-day will make these petitions of value.

Each district presenting a proper petition will have submitted to it on the State election ballot the question of instructions for Senator or Representative in this district by made by convention or by direct "primary."

Tom Giblin announces that he's an out Fitzgerald candidate for Governor. Who'll be Tom's next? Didn't the Fitz people ask him to withdraw and leave Mackey as the only East Boston candidate?

If you live in the Tenth Congressional district, the postman will be around to your home—or at least to your voting residence—within a day or two with a letter from candidate McNary. William isn't going to let neighbor Curley get away with his Scriptural Campaign. He is sending you the following comment:

"The Scriptures and Politics.

"Dedicated to Rep. J. M. C.'s.

"'Oppo the devil, on with the opposition to suit his purposes.' Old proverb.

"'When the Devil was sick.'

"'The Devil a saint would be';

"'When the Devil was well.'

"'The devil a saint was he.'—Old verse.

"When Humble Jimmie twists the Scriptures

So as to serve his purpose bold.

Humble he is, but the picture

As old as sin and tales twice told.' Hail Jimmie Ballads of the Plastered Highlands.

Francis Duke O'Neil of Tudor street, East Boston, is said to be Mr. McNary's rhymist. Mr. O'Neil evidently thinks that the Tenth district contest is a devil of a row.

* * *

Candidate McNary held a little rally in front of Thompson's Spa this morning. He has it all figured out why Curley can't win. "Last Winter," he said, "Curley was in favor of the Tunnel Extension Bill. Therefore, that bill ended Hale, Keeney and Brutal. Ballantyne and Attridge were not for betterment. Curley who isn't on the ballot. Remember, too, that his ended Meagher and Donovan, too, that his ended Meagher and Donovan, too, that his ended Meagher and Donovan

It Is So Easy to Say, "The Thing Won't Work"

So VERY EASY That Even Wise Men Keep On Saying It

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

How plentiful is the dismal howler—the man who tells you how foolish your idea is, how impossible your plan is.

Christopher Columbus met such pessimists in dozens, and answered them with his success.

Not only feeble, timid men, unable to do anything for themselves, but really able citizens, scientific men of real accomplishment, are often the first to discourage the planning of others.

When the first locomotive was sent spinning along smooth rails, really able scientists declared that the idea was amusing, but had no real value.

First they said: "It will kill a human being to make him travel for any length of time at the terrific speed of twenty-five miles an hour."

Then they said: "Besides, if you run trains as fast as twenty-five miles an hour you will have to build big stone walls on either side of the track, as the rush of air would kill those that stood beside the train."

Others interested in the old system of hauling freight by horsepower nodded their heads wisely and said: "It's all very well to run along on a slippery track. But you can't HAUL ANY WEIGHT ON THAT TRACK. When you have to do any REAL HEAVY hauling, you will be glad to come and get the good old horse to do the hauling for you."

Those gentlemen have been sufficiently answered. Trains run now at seventy and eighty miles an hour, and even faster—and the speed doesn't kill the passengers, and they don't have to build stone walls along the tracks in order to prevent the rush of wind from killing bystanders.

And the locomotive manages to haul a considerable amount of freight, WITHOUT ASKING THE GOOD OLD HORSE TO COME AND HELP.

Two weeks ago one single locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad hauled one hundred and twenty steel cars full of coal—the greatest load ever hauled by one locomotive.

This train of cars was a mile and a quarter long. Each car contained fifty tons—one hundred thousand pounds of coal—and in addition there was the heavy weight of the steel car itself.

There was one single locomotive pulling a load of twelve million pounds—without counting the weight of the locomotive, or the weight of one hundred and twenty cars—weighing not less than five million pounds more.

One little machine invented by the human mind drags over the curved surface of the earth, in spite of gravitation, seventeen million pounds of dead weight.

If the old gentlemen who thought that in order to pull heavy weight the good old horse would be necessary could now come back they would have a surprise.

Before the aeroplane had begun to fly, and again after the flying was proved a partial success, this newspaper suggested that in a short time man's flying machine would go faster than the birds, just as man's running machine on wheels goes faster than the horse on its four legs.

We suggested also that man's flying machine would probably travel around the earth eventually as rapidly as our sun APPEARS to travel around us—that is to say, as rapidly as the earth turns on its axis. We believe that men eventually will travel entirely around the earth—if they wish to do it—within twenty-four hours.

When this suggestion was offered by the Boston American we were rebuked by men of real scientific ability. They said that it was nonsense to think of the aeroplane going as fast as a bird—to say nothing of its going at the rate of a thousand miles an hour.

Yet the other day, in France, a man started in his aeroplane and at the same time a number of carrier pigeons—the strongest, fastest flying birds that man controls—were liberated. The home of the carrier pigeons was the destination of the man in the flying machine. And the flying man beat the carrier pigeons with ease.

This, although the carrier pigeon, with his wonderful wings, his light bones that are almost hollow, his heart, which is a marvellous engine, has back of him the evolution and development of thousands of centuries, whereas man's flying machine has only the development of yesterday.

The wise men so fond of saying, "I can't; it's impossible; how foolish!" etc., are just now very busy with the flying machine. One able scientist named Maxim most intelligently and scientifically rebuked this newspaper for suggesting that the fighting machine in the air will put an end to the fighting vessel afloat. He sounds convincing in his statement that dynamite dropped from the clouds won't do very much harm to battleships, and in his other statements—but he is wrong.

When the warship, loaded with armor, slow, unwieldly in manoeuvring, comes in contact with the flocks of flying ships high up in the air, out of reach of those below, BUT ABLE TO REACH THEM—that will be the end of the fighting man on the water. The Nelsons and Drakes of the future—if there are to be any more men made great by bloodshed—will be sailors of the air, not of the water.

The flying ship of battle will do to the boat on the water everything that a fish hawk can do to a fish, and more; everything that an eagle can do to a rabbit, and more.

The shipbuilders may eventually produce a ship fashioned as Nature fashions the turtle—with a shell so hard as to protect it from the flying warship, just as the turtle's shell protects him from the bird of prey.

But such a battleship, like the turtle, would not be very much of a fighting instrument; it would not count in the affairs of the world.

If we are to have navies in the future for fighting purposes, those navies will be great flocks of swift air craft, carrying their explosives—dynamite enough to kill a hundred thousand men, yet risking in each craft the lives of only two or three sailors at most.

These craft will be kept ashore, on convenient high points along the coast, like birds of prey. They will cost nothing while not in use. Many of them, in peace, will be used as messengers.

When war breaks out—which will not happen more than once or twice after the flying ship becomes a reality—these great birds of prey will scour the ocean, destroy the FIGHTING ships, and capture the MERCHANT ships of the enemy—and practically without loss to the flying fleet—and this with all due respect to the scientific doubts of Mr. Maxim.

"Come Back, Roosevelt, and War on the Bosses," Advises W. R. Hearst

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Special Cable to the American.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Mr. Roosevelt is careering through the West delivering spectacular speeches to which the famous criticism can aptly apply, "They contain many good and original things, but the original things are not good, and the good things are not original."

Mr. Roosevelt has, nevertheless, made one important proposal which commends itself to the mind and heart of intelligent and patriotic voters.

Mr. Roosevelt lately declared that he was determined to drive the corrupt bosses out of his party in New York State.

If Mr. Roosevelt is in earnest in that proposal, let him come back to New York and seriously settle down to that important piece of business.

I cannot sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt's opposition to Mr. Taft. It savors too much of small envy and petty jealousy.

ROOSEVELT AND THE LATE PANIC.

I cannot sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt's reckless and indiscriminate attack upon the financial interests. It is too reminiscent of Mr. Roosevelt's unfortunate connection with the late lamentable panic.

I can, however, sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt's determination to eliminate corrupt bosses from the control of his party. But if Mr. Roosevelt's determination is sincere, let him come home to New York and seriously apply himself to the work in hand. Criticism of Mr. Taft is not particularly admirable or especially effective from Mr. Roosevelt just now. Too obviously, Mr. Taft's chief offence lies in the fact that he is President, while Mr. Roosevelt is a private citizen.

This is a more serious fault in Mr. Roosevelt's eyes than in the estimation of the public generally, for certainly Mr. Taft has made a good President and has accomplished as much as any President could have accomplished in so brief a period of office. Moreover, the Presidential election is over two years away, and if Mr. Roosevelt is to be elected President again, as he evidently hopes to be, it must be because of what Mr. Roosevelt himself shall do to deserve the gratitude of the people, not because of what Mr. Taft may fail to do.

Therefore, I say Mr. Roosevelt should perform some definite action for the benefit of the people, and what better than to return to New York and drive the corrupt bosses there out of the Republican party.

Reckless attack upon the financial interests is not particularly commendable or especially judicious from Mr. Roosevelt just now.

The financial situation is in a somewhat critical condition. The banks, while perfectly solvent, have been subjected to considerable strain.

BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT HANGS ON CONFIDENCE.

Business generally is just recovering from the stress of the recent panic, and violent and vindictive threats leveled at the business world can do little good, and may do much harm to the whole country.

Business development depends largely upon confidence, and is more unsettled by boisterous talk than by stringent acts conservatively performed.

Mr. Roosevelt speaks lightly of financial disaster, but Mr. Roosevelt should realize that a financial depression affects more than the financiers.

A panic may cause inconvenience to the rich, but it brings actual suffering to the poor. In times of depression the rich may not afford to buy diamonds, but the poor can hardly afford to buy bread.

I am not one of those who would protect any criminal corporation or excuse any guilty individual, and, as a matter of fact, there is not one intelligent idea in all Mr. Roosevelt's newly discovered policies that I have not advocated for many years. There is not one sound principle of corporation regulation that I did not enunciate when I was running for Governor of New York and when Mr. Roosevelt was using his Presidential powers to oppose me and my programme.

The better part of the proposals which Mr. Roosevelt would now of a sudden enact into law were introduced by me as bills in Congress during Mr. Roosevelt's Presidential term without the slightest assistance from Mr. Roosevelt to make them law.

MAKES GOOD AS EXCHANGE EDITOR.

Therefore, it is a little difficult to understand exactly what Mr. Roosevelt really believes, and when he really believes it.

In journalism, however, it is quite obvious that Mr. Roosevelt's capacity for liberal and varied selection fits him peculiarly for a career as exchange editor.

There can be no question that a corporation should be controlled by law for the public good, exactly as an individual is; there can be no question that a criminal corporation should be prosecuted, convicted and punished, exactly as Mr. Taft prosecuted and punished the criminal Sugar Trust, and exactly as Mr. Roosevelt, with all the evidence in hand, should have done, but unfortunately did not.

I myself have prosecuted corporations and individuals when guilty; I have convicted corporations and individuals when guilty, and they have paid their fines and served their terms; but I have always had specific facts and definite proof upon which to convict them, and I have never recklessly made damaging accusations that I could not wholly and absolutely sustain.

Therefore, I can conscientiously and consistently advise Mr. Roosevelt to devote himself to some specific abuse which cries for remedy, and perform some distinct service to the people which will call for their approval. Let him come home to New York. Let him join hands generously with Mr. Taft. Let him labor unselfishly to perform a needed work, and he will receive recognition in proportion to his service.

A TASK WORTHY OF HIS POWERS.

Purging his party of the bosses who dominate and defile it, cleansing the Augean stables of practical politics, would be a task more worthy of Mr. Roosevelt's herculean powers, and deserving of popular approval.

There are no more corrupt, no more venal, no more insolent, no more defiant bosses in the world than the Republican bosses of the State of New York, except the Democratic bosses of the State of New York.

The last Legislature furnished examples of the most flagrant violation of declared party principles and the most insolent defiance of the people's will by corrupt Democrats and venal Republicans, working in perfect harmony under the discreditable direction of the amalgamated bosses of both parties.

The election of Cannon to the speakership of the House by Democratic votes and the courteous compact of the Republicans to elect Tammany in return furnish other instances of the evil purposes of this joint stock company of associated bosses.

It was the proud privilege of our unbossed Independents to break up this political holdings company—this non-partisan gentlemen's agreement for the promotion of party treachery and political crime.

The Independents have long fought Democratic and Republican bosses impartially, and we are ready to co-operate with any one earnestly engaged in the same useful and inspiring pursuit.

We Independents have swinging from our tent poles the dried scalps of many a Democratic boss, and in the last election we so loosened the hair of the Republican boss of Kings County that Mr. Roosevelt will be surprised to find how easily Mr. Woodruff's slippery scalp will now come off.

DRIVE OUT THE BOSSES, MR. ROOSEVELT.

Come home to New York, Mr. Roosevelt, and honestly take the warpath against the bosses!

We Independents are whetting our tomahawks for the fray. There is no jealousy in our ranks. We do not care who leads, if only he leads aright.

We do not care who gains the glory as long as the people gain the victory.

Drive the Republican bosses out of the Republican party, Mr. Roosevelt, and if any one of them deserts to the Democratic party, fifty thousand Independents will take his place.

If Barnes, Woodruff, Aldridge, all three of them, desert to the Democracy, one hundred and fifty thousand Independents will take their places.

We cast that many votes at the last election, Mr. Roosevelt. We can cast them again, and more.
